GAS CAUSE OF BATTLESHIP DEATHS!

BIG CONTEST TOMORROW AT PARK

Gilmore Oilers With Scores of Rooters Coming to Battle White Sox

A last-minute substitution, forced by the tragedy that overwhelmed the Pacific fleet after the fatal explosion on the U. S. S. Mississippi yesterday, was made by Manager Frank Kerwin of the Glendale White Sox, who will bring to Glendale tomorrow the Gilmore Oil company's baseball team to take the place of the champions of the fleet, the team from the U. S. S. New Mexico, who were to have played the White Sox in the Baseball Booster Day game at the local park.

Immediately the news of the possibility of the cancellation of the game with the sailors began to loom up, the manager of the Gilmore Oilers telephoned Manager Kerwin offering to substitute for the fleet champions, and the offer was accepted by Kerwin in the sportsmanlike spirit in which it was made.

Third in League

While deeply regretting the enforced absence of the New Mexico's team, Kerwin feels that he is offering the baseball fans of

TRIAL OF FRAUD CHARGE STARTS

Former Glendale Merchant To Face Federal Jury In Conspiracy Case

LOS ANGELES—Trial of Nettie Bowen, David Pashkalov, et al., charged with conspiracy to defraud, started in Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick's court this morning, the jurors being questioned closely regarding their acquaintanceship with the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade and William H. Moore, receiver for bankrupts.

Pashkalov, who operated the Little Premium Market in Glendale under the name of David Donwell, was in court with his wife also present and represented by attorneys. It was indicated that a determined effort will be made to prove that Pashkalov's business interests in Glendale were disposed of at less than their true value.

The defendants were arrested in Chicago and returned to Los Angeles for trial.

President Orders Investigation of Explosion on Ship

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Coolidge, as commander-in-chief, today ordered the navy department to conduct a rigid and exhaustive investigation to fix responsibility for the terrific explosion yesterday aboard the battleship Mississippi, which cost the lives of three officers and forty-five enlisted men and resulted in serious injuries to many others.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who was at Cleveland, is rushing back to Washington to take personal charge of the investigation and to summon a special board of officers to convene at Los Angeles to pursue the inquiry.

HOLD TRAIN CREW IN MAIL ROBBERY

U. S. Sleuths Arrest Seventy In Probing $1,500,000 Postal Holdup

CHICAGO, June 13.—Every man of the seventy who manned the fast Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul all mail train which was held up and looted last night of mail, the value of which may reach a million and a half dollars, was taken into custody by federal operatives today for questioning. A. M. Germer, chief postoffice inspector, in charge of the investigation into the robbery, declared the robbery to have been an "inside job."

The corps of bandits, using chlorine gas to drive the clerks from three cars of the train after it had sped thirty-four miles from Chicago, on its way north and west, gathered between forty-five and fifty-two sacks containing federal reserve currency shipments in an hour's work. They completed their smoothly organized task about midnight.

A single instance of bloodshed marked the robbery. One of the gang's own members was shot through the head when his fellows mistook him for a belligerent member of the train crew. A pool of blood marked the spot where he lay while his companions completed the robbery before loading him into a car for the get-away.

Doumergue Is Elected President of France

VERSAILLES, June 13.—Gaston Doumergue, president of the French Senate, this afternoon was elected president of the French republic in succession to Alexandre Millerand, resigned.

President Doumergue will serve until September 23, 1927.

BOXING LAW PASSED BY COUNCIL

Professional Fighters Are Barred In Ordinance Effective July 12

Professional boxing is banned in Glendale and amateur bouts rigidly regulated by the terms of Ordinance 957, passed by the City Council at Thursday's session. A quarterly license fee of $200, payable in advance, is one of the stipulations. Another limits the rounds to four, three minutes in length, with one minute intervals, and prescribes gloves weighing not less than seven ounces. The ordinance will become effective thirty days after its passage, or July 12.

The ordinance is in eleven sections. The first defines professional and amateur boxing, as used in the ordinance, stating that boxing shall be considered as amateur only when the prize or trophy given the winner does not exceed $35 in value.

To Ban All Pros

The second section declares that professional boxing will be banned. The third defines the gloves to be used, length of rounds and intervals, as stated above. The fourth states that no bouts may be held without a permit by the City Council, and that said permit will be issued only after written application has been made, covering such points as are there stated.

The fifth section states that such application shall be submitted to the chief of police and reported upon to the council by him as to the moral character and physical standing of the applicants and their associates; and that the application shall then be submitted to the building superintendent and reported to the council by him as to the safety of the structure where the proposed bouts are to be held.

One Bout Daily

The sixth section declares that the permit will be revokable under certain conditions, after five days written notice, among other grounds for revocation being the holding of bouts on Sundays or May 30. The seventh provides a license fee of $200 per quarter and mentions Ordinance 573 as

ORDERS SOLDIERS' BONUS ENFORCED

Coolidge States Position In Letter Urging Prompt Action On Law

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Coolidge today issued definite instructions for the administration of the soldiers' bonus law, despite the failure of Congress to appropriate funds for its initial cost.

"The world war adjusted compensation act became a law over my protest," the president said in a letter to Secretary of War Weeks. "I am not willing, however, to let the administration of the law remain practically in abeyance until Congress again convenes simply because I would be justified under existing conditions in so doing.

"Rather, I regard this law as imposing certain obligations upon the executive branch of the government which do not permit of delay in performance."

ATHLETES MEET IN FINAL TRYOUTS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 13.—With the greatest honor that can come to a knight of the spiked shoe, at stake, some 400 of America's track and field elite competed in the final trials for the Olympic team this afternoon on a wind-swept stadium track.

J. C. Oard Taylor, former Princeton star, established a new world's record for 400 meters in one of the trial heats for the American Olympic team. Taylor lashed over the route in 48 1-10 seconds, clipping a tenth of a second from Charles Reidpath's old mark, made in 1912.

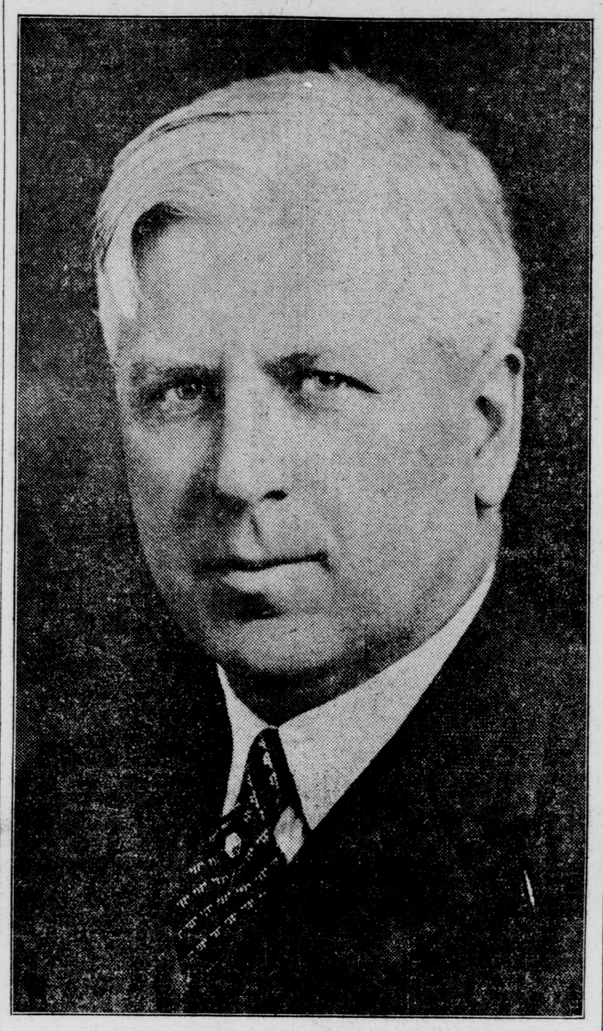
Dehart Hubbard, Michigan university, leaped within eleven inches of the world's record in the running broad jump by clearing 25 feet 3-8 inches on his first trial.

Charley Paddock and Jackson Scholz equalled the Olympic record of 10 3-5 seconds in winning the heats in the 100-metre dash. Scholz won off by himself but Paddock was chased into the tape to take the third heat by inches from George Hill of Pennsylvania, the intercollegiate champion.

Paddock was shut out in one of the semi-final heats of the 100-metre dash, finishing behind Scholz, Keith Lloyd and Chester Bowman. Scholz won, going away, by two yards in 10 6-10 seconds, coming up from a bad start to catch and pass his field. Paddock finished fourth and, by special dispensation, will be allowed to enter the finals tomorrow.

Security Building Ready

R. F. KITTERMAN, vice president and manager of the Glendale branch of the Security bank, who will be chief host tomorrow at formal opening of the Glendale Security building.



The Glendale Security building, the big business block that really makes Glendale look like "the fastest growing city in America," becomes an actual and living factor in the life of the community tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

At that hour the doors of Glendale's first skyline building will be thrown open for the first time and the big community celebration in honor of the completion of the building will be on. It will be a gala occasion, an event long to be remembered in the life of this city. Not since the first car came up Brand boulevard on the Pacific Electric tracks has there been such a day as is scheduled for tomorrow.

Carnival Spirit

In keeping with the carnival spirit which will no doubt prevail on the streets, the Security will have immense search and flood lights playing on the beautiful terra cotta walls of the city's first "skyscraper." A great portable generating plant, as used by the Hollywood motion picture companies while taking night scenes "on location," will trundle its way over Los Feliz road from the big movie city on the other side of the hills. The search lights can be seen for a distance of ten miles and will make the Glendale Security building, already the most sightly structure between Hollywood and Pasadena, visible for many more miles than it is during the day.

Credit to City

As the crowds swarm through the great bronze doors of the new banking room of the Glendale branch of the Security tomorrow, it will be doubtful whether the banking personnel will be any prouder of the beautiful metropolitan banking room than the public itself. The people look on the artistic but substantial building and banking room as concrete evidence of Glendale's arrival as a real city. No office building in Los Angeles is more beautiful or more fireproof and no banking room more perfect in its appointments. Both building and room would be an artistic addition of first importance to any city.

A large force of workmen are polishing the last walls of marble and furbishing the last bronze doors today, by way of having the new Security home perfect and complete, ready for the thousands of guests expected on the morrow.

Fatal Blast Starts Move to Raise Guns

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A new movement to secure Congressional approval next winter of the proposal of the navy department to elevate the guns on the American capital ships was launched here today as a result of the fatal explosion aboard the battleship Mississippi.

Naval officials pointed out that if the turrets of the ships were altered to obtain long range elevation without so much crowding such accidents could not occur.

ASPHYXIATION RESPONSIBLE FOR TAKING TOLL OF 48 ON MISSISSIPPI, PROBE SHOWS

Deadly Fumes Coming From Breech of Gun in Lethal Chamber of Turret Smother Men as They Vainly Seek Means of Escape

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—The forty-eight bluejackets killed yesterday in a big gun turret on the U. S. S. Mississippi met their deaths by gas asphyxiation!

This was declared by navy officers today aiding in the investigation of the sea tragedy.

While some of the gunners' bodies were mutilated and burned, almost instant death was caused by deadly gases vomited from the breech of a 14-inch gun into the lethal chamber of the turret where the men were trapped, the officers said.

Official investigation of the disaster was begun today. A naval board of inquiry appointed by Vice-Admiral Henry S. Wiley and headed by Captain Yates Sterling, commanding officer of the U. S. S. New Mexico, convened at 10 o'clock and started investigation of the worst peacetime disaster in the history of the United States navy, excepting the blowing up of the Maine. The board sat aboard the New Mexico.

Rear-Admiral W. V. Pratt, commander of the four battleship division to which the Mississippi is attached, announced that separate investigations into the deaths of the three officers will be made.

The three most important points in the investigation which the board will consider are:

1 To establis' the exact cause of the explosion; whether it was a "flareback" as generally believed or whether it was the result of a confusion in firing orders.

2 To establish the exact cause of the discharge of one of the guns of the turret four hours after the explosion which sent a shell close to the passenger steamer Yale as the Yale was leaving the harbor.

3 To investigate thoroughly the defects in the turret which made it a tightly sealed chamber of horrors when the explosion occured. The hatchways of the turret were welded shut by the terrific heat of the blast, trapping the men who struggled to escape.

Caught in Trap

Inspection of the wrecked turret today showed that the explosion had made it a trap. It was necessary to cut a hole with acetylene torches through the 13-inch steel walls of the turret to send the first man into the death chamber. The bodies of a dozen sailors were found heaped at the sealed hatchways where they had died in a hopeless effort to escape.

This is "black Friday," Friday, the 13th, in the Pacific battle fleet. From man-of-war to man-of-war, from deck to deck, locker to locker, stalks death. Twenty thousand sailors are in mourning.

From out at sea where rides the majestic U. S. Mississippi to the little harbor town of San Pedro, known as "Sailors' Home," there is spread the bitter mantle of sorrow.

Sheltered from the green ocean behind the harbor breakwater rolls the white hospital ship, Relief. On her open decks, row on row, rest the forty-eight dead from the ill-fated "Missy." Forty-eight bodies, black and seared, there are, wrapped in white sheets and draped in the glorious folds of Old Glory.

Baseball Star Dead

In that death row is the Pacific fleet's star welterweight boxer. Beside his body is the maimed corpse of the Mississippi's crack gunner. Another silent figure is that of the fleet's star baseball pitcher. There, too, stilled forever, is the voice of the "Missy's" sweetest tenor.

Within a few feet from the dead are the piled grim coffins, which will carry the bodies to far-off Maine, to Illinois, to sunny Georgia—to every home port of these dead "buddies."

Each man who met trapped death in that fiery furnace at sea will be given a military funeral. Solemn services will be held on every battleship in the fleet as the brave gunners "cross the bar" on their last cruise.

But the dead are forgotten for the moment while navy surgeons and sailor assistants battle to save the lives of the wounded. Ten gunners are seriously burned and may die. Fifty others are grewsome—painted with a yellow-white ointment to ease their pain, as they toss on their iron cots.

On the wharves in sight of the men-of-war are the waiting crowds. Weeping girls and women—pitiful proof that "sailors have sweethearts in every port." All through the night they have waited—some for the living, some for the dead.

But they are patient. It has just been learned the bodies of the dead will not be taken to San Pedro morgues until late today. The crowds do not go away, however.

Patiently these sweethearts and friends are waiting, piteously pleading for news of their lovers and loved ones. There is weeping and even screaming among the girls—pale-faced girls, caught up by a blast of deatth.

Here and there a white handkerchief flutters in greeting to an anchored battleship, its flags bowed in grief. And so the throng waits for the end of the long, black day—Friday, the Thirteenth.

An inspection of the "death turret" revealed the men were unable to escape because the intense heat of the fire after the

Frantic Relatives Wire for News of Friends In Fleet

SAN PEDRO, June 13.—This grief-stricken little port was flooded with telegrams from every state in the union today, as relatives and friends of the forty-eight bluejackets killed on the U. S. S. Mississippi sought news of the tragedy.

Thousands of the sailors of the Pacific fleet, here for battle practice, were sent telegrams from their loved ones at home.

In the San Pedro telegraph offices the messages were piled high, as in most cases delivery was impossible.

Most of the sailors were denied shore leave and kept on board their battleships, while the official investigation of the deaths of their comrades was started on board the U. S. S. New Mexico.

Blast Death List Includes Three of Annapolis' Finest

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—Three of Annapolis' "best" were among the victims of the peace tragedy on the Mississippi. They were Ensign Marcus Erwin, Jr., "best dressed" man in the class of '23, Annapolis; Lieutenant Thomas Edward Zellars, "handsomest man in the class of '21," and Ensign William George McCrea, "superman," class of '22.

Ensign Erwin was in his first year of active service. He was on his class football team three years, class track team two years, and on the gym team one year. His home was in Asheville, N. C.

Lieutenant Zellars was from Grantville, Ga. He was secretly married last December, just before the fleet sailed for battle practice. His widow resides in Long Beach.

Ensign McCrea was known as the "superman" by his classmates because he mastered two pages of Italian in one hour. He was an exceptional student, a musician and a member of the Annapolis fencing squad. His home was in Renoneva, Pa.

At that time it is planned to enroll all Glendale people, who like to sing.

AWARD PRIZE TO GLENDALE GIRL FOR POPULARITY

Genevieve Mulligan Chosen Favorite of Sophomore Class at College

Among the Glendale students who are making exceptional records at the University of Southern California, Miss Genevieve Mulligan stands out with an extraordinary list of achievements. Her many accomplishments received appropriate recognition last week when she was voted the most popular girl in the sophomore class, and was presented with a beautiful silver loving cup at the sophomore dance held at the Friday morning clubhouse in Los Angeles.

As a member of the class of '22 at the Glendale Union High school Miss Mulligan was prominent in class and student activities, having been president of the orchestra for two years besides taking part in the senior play and other dramatic productions. She is an artist on the violin and has appeared before Glendale audiences on many occasions in solo and trio numbers. Continuing with her musical and dramatic work at the university, she has won distinction for herself during her first two years there, and her ability as an actress and reader has been recognized with membership in Zeta Phi Eta, an honorary dramatic society.

Member of Amazons

Miss Mulligan has been very active in all campus affairs, having been recently elected to the Amazons, a women's organization that has as its purpose the enforcement of traditions on the campus, and was chosen one of the members of the executive committee for next year. This is the governing body in the student self-government system at the University of Southern California which passes on most of the questions pertaining to student activities and control.

In the sophomore class, Genevieve has been one of the leaders and has held the office of vice president throughout the semester now coming to a close. It was at a meeting of the class that she was nominated with six other prominent sophomore girls for the most popular girl member of the class of '26, and when the names were balloted upon she won that distinction.

Keeps Up Studies

Miss Mulligan has not allowed her interest in activities to interfere with her studies, however, and has made a remarkable scholastic record as well. She is majoring in public speaking with the intention of further developing her dramatic ability. The Alpha Gamma Delta sorority claims her as a member.

Wins Prize

Miss Genevieve Mulligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mulligan of 321 East Chestnut street, who was recently voted the most popular girl of the sophomore class at the University of Southern California.

DAVID LAWRENCE

David Lawrence may not be as well known to the general public as D. W. Griffith but to newspaper men the world over he is equally as well known, and deservedly so. His rise constitutes one of the outstanding journalistic achievements thus far in the Twentieth century.

A reporter in Buffalo, he worked his way through Princeton, joined the Associated Press and "covered" the Mexican revolution, Admiral Togo, the Los Angeles dynamite cases and President Wilson. In 1915 he went to the New York Evening Post, which the following year began syndicating his articles. The Glendale Evening News is one of the 160 papers in the Consolidated Press service which Mr. Lawrence developed. As a worthwhile correspondent he has vindicated the judgment of this newspaper.

Mr. Lawrence's independence of judgment and freedom from partisanship commend him. His viewpoint is worth repeating. He says:

"I know there are some people who insist that the only way you can be successful is to favor a political party, but if you trim or cater to either side there is a sacrifice of independence. When the Democrats were in power I reported what they were doing and with the Republicans in power I am doing the same thing. I have many friends in both parties, for they understand that I have no ax to grind—I am merely presenting the evidence to the American jury. The papers I serve agree on that view for they are always insisting that I give them a true impression of what is going on in Washington. When I sit down to a typewriter I feel like a judge on the bench—I have no friends or enemies."

David Lawrence has set a high standard for himself and others. The service rendered the public by newspapers everywhere would be improved if his wholesome views of the solemn duty imposed in commenting on affairs were widely adopted.

PROUD OF PARTY HISTORY

Republicans are proud of the history of their party. Organized just seventy years ago at Ripon, Wis., with opposition to the extension of slavery as its principal objective, the party has contributed many great chapters to the political history of the United States.

The mass meeting at Ripon early in 1854 was followed later in the same year by state conventions in Michigan, Vermont, Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana. On February 22, 1856, a preliminary national convention was held in Pittsburgh and on June 17 of the same year the first convention was held in Philadelphia. Col. John C. Fremont of California was the first Republican candidate for the Presidency, and it is interesting to note that Abraham Lincoln got 110 votes for the Vice-Presidential nomination, which went to William L. Dayton of New Jersey.

Beginning with 1856, when Col. Fremont was defeated by James Buchanan, the Democratic candidate, the Republican party has participated in seventeen national elections and its candidates have been victorious in twelve of them. Calvin Coolidge will be the thirteenth man to carry the standard of the party, his distinguished predecessors being, beside Col. Fremont, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, James G. Blaine, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Charles E. Hughes and Warren G. Harding.

RIGHT NOW IS TIME

The time to buy real estate is when others want to sell it, and the time to sell real estate is when others want to buy it. That is a general market principle having application to all commodities that fluctuate. That is how the keen Wall Street millionaire makes his killings—and it is the way for Glendale people to make money RIGHT NOW.

Because of general conditions beyond our control, a reaction has been felt for some time in local real estate. Curtailment of bank loans and general tightening of money had something to do with it. The foot and mouth disease did the rest. The latter is now checked and banks are loosening up. Tourists are pouring in. Those who know predict the greatest fall and winter the Southland has ever seen.

The time to buy is NOW, not next week or next month but RIGHT NOW, while others who are timid and lack analytical power are still eager to sell. By fall another golden opportunity to get rich on Glendale real estate will have passed.

WRITTEN BY AUTOMOBILES

The history of California is being written in automobiles. Up to June 1, 1924, registration of motor vehicles totaled 1,165,258 cars, trucks, trailers and motorcycles, according to the state motor vehicle department, division being as follows:

Passenger cars, 987,776; pneumatic trucks, 119,465; solid trucks, 37,264; motorcycles, 9,835; trailers, 10,918.

Collections for the period amounted to $5,687,179.45. The money is divided between the state and counties for road maintenance purposes after expenses of the division are paid.

With the possible exception of New York, no state will show such a record as that during 1924.

NEED DRASTIC MEASURES

Every year certain morons are observed returning from the hills with the stalks of the stately yucca lashed to their cars, despite the fact that a fine of $50 and imprisonment for thirty days in the county jail is the punishment for this offense.

One can scarcely picture the character of a person who would thus destroy one of Southern California's rarest, most beautiful flowers. The tall white blooms are a part of our tradition and literature and are sacred to all true Californians.

It is the duty of everyone who sees one of these criminals carrying away yuccas to take drastic measures in having him delivered over to the law.

Now why doesn't somebody gather up all the waste paper and discarded lunch boxes, strewn about favorite camping sites, have them baled and show us how they compare, in volume, with the Woolworth building?

When folks select a recreation resort they are usually more interested in who's in the swim than what's in the water.

Don't borrow your neighbor's hair brush, he may have trouble of his own.

Well, anyway, it's usually a crank that starts something.

NO SCARCITY OF PARTNERS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL DANCE

Providence

By DR. FRANK CRANE

No one can see Providence who is incapable of generalities.

Providence represents an idea; and if one is going to form his opinions by single instances, if he is incapable of recognizing exceptions, he should let ideas alone.

He had better stick to mowing the lawn or tinkering with the automobile.

In fact the difference between the ripened mind, the mind that you would call cultured or educated and the native mind of the child or the dishwasher is, first, the power to generalize and, second, the will to form one's judgment and govern one's conduct by generalities.

A belief in Providence amounts to a belief that the universe is controlled by a governing mind. I say mind and not force; for mind has a purpose, it cares; force is indifferent, it does not care.

There are myriads of single instances which indicate that the governing power in the universe is careless; but every one of these proves no more than the fact that that governing power does not seem to care for the same things that we care for, which is not at all a proof that it cares for nothing. It is simply proof that we do not understand.

As far as the known laws that govern the world are visible they show purpose. Lack of purpose is shown only by those exceptions that seem to have no law. The difference between the honest man and the rogue is that the honest man believes that honesty is the best policy all the time, in the dark as well as in the light, when the result is pain and shame even as when the result is pleasure and profit; while the rogue is simply the person who believes that "this time does not count."

There can be no such distinction as that which is made between General and Special Providence. If there is any Providence at all it must attend quite as carefully to the orbit and movements of an electron as to the course of Arcturus.

The human mind is finite; it thinks clearly only as it brushes aside all non-essentials and distracting things and concentrates upon one. But if there is any mind at all managing the universe, that is to say, if there is any Providence, it must be a mind that does not have to do this.

In other words, our minds think in a straight line; we can think of but one thing at a time. The mind governing the universe must be able to think of everything at once. It must be attending to the marriage of the atoms, to the flow of the electric current and must do this with perfect ease, at the same time that it is controlling the destiny of nations and the dance of the stars.

I believe in Providence and that Providence, and not law or force, is governing everything in the universe for the simple reason that I believe that mind is superior to force and law.

I know that a thought can create a cathedral. And I know that the cathedral continues to stand only so long as it corresponds to certain thoughts in the minds of men.

I know that thought and the functioning of mind is the greatest known force. And I cannot conceive of Providence as being of any lesser sort of thing than my own mind. The whole cannot be less than one of its parts.

The other day an earthquake jiggled the roulette balls in the Casino at Monte Carlo and increased the rake-off of M. Blanc a perceptible amount.

There is a kind of brain to which this sort of thing is a proof that there is no Providence or that Providence is careless or cynical.

I am glad I do not have that kind of brain.

CHANGING THE STATE LAW
(From Redlands Facts)

The San Bernardino Sun discusses editorially the suggested plan of repealing Amendment No. 1, as that part of the State Constitution which outlines the plan of state taxation is known. The Sun argues that if the basis is the same as that of the year 1914-15, San Bernardino county would save 43 per cent of her county taxes, or to put it so it will appeal a little more, San Bernardino county taxpayers would be favored with a reduction of 43 per cent of their taxes, because of the fact that the state plan treats us very unfairly, due to the great mileage of railroads in this county, all of which property is set apart for state taxation only.

The Sun says that frankly it does not see much chance of repealing Amendment No. 1, because the corporations, while they (rhetorically speaking and sometimes literally speaking) swear at the amendment at the same time they all stand by it; but the Sun suggests that perhaps at the time of the adoption of the King Tax Bill, which for once carried to the public service corporations a rate of taxation on a par with that on the private or individual taxpayer, the corporations might have been willing to have considered such repeal.

But they wouldn't, even then. It is history of record that Assemblyman Isaac Jones of the western end of this county introduced a constitutional amendment to repeal the present tax scheme at the very same session the King bill was adopted, but the railroads fought it as a part of their regular program of lobbying, and they succeeded in defeating it. As a matter of cold fact and figures, they want the present plan of taxation, because it favors them. While they do not succeed in "passing on" all the burden of their taxation to the people, they do get by with much the greater share of it, and they prefer to take their chances with a Legislature than with all the assessors of 58 counties, especially if they can get a complacent gubernatorial administration.

There is one thing which might carry at this time, which would relieve the people, although there would yet remain the present injustice to San Bernardino county. It is the proposed constitutional amendment to apportion to the counties the surplus remaining in the state treasury, at certain given periods, such apportionment to be in proportion to their taxable values. Then the people would demand economy in state administration, to the end that a surplus should be accumulated, and all the representatives, except those directly controlled by the corporations would have pressure upon them to fix the rates paid by the corporations on a parity with those paid by the people.

Worth While Verse

ON THE LIFE OF MAN

Like to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which no water stood;
Even such is man, whose borrowed light
Is straight called in and paid to night.
The wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The spring entombed in autumn lies;
The dew dries up, the star is shot,
The flight is past—and man forgot.

The People —of— Anytown

Character Sketches

Marcus Sholes was known in Anytown as Mrs. Sholes' husband. We were so accustomed to masculine domination in the old days that it was quite a joke when we heard Marcus Sholes admit he should have to consult his wife when he was approached on any matter, was it subscribing a dollar for the new band stand on Main street or taking out a life insurance policy.

It should not be strange if, now and then, the wife should be more capable than the husband and should dominate the home but it was laughable in the case of old Marcus Sholes for he had married late in life and, as a bachelor, he had scoffed at the joys of married life and had ridiculed the ties that bound Anytown's married men. Though he was good-looking and was known to be a man of excellent habits he was rather colorless and his company was in no great demand even in Anytown where spinsters and widows were plentiful and many of them were rather aggressive in their efforts to ameliorate their lonely condition. Perhaps the fact that he was not popular had something to do with the cynicism with which he regarded women and marriage. He was very quiet and the only time he became sociable and jovial was when he had an opportunity to banter some married man about the bonds of matrimony.

Marcus Sholes, or old man Sholes as we called him even then, made us believe that he was too smart to be caught by the wiles of the other sex and we never dreamed that he would marry, so, when he went away on a vacation and came back with a wife, a young woman who had just graduated from Redfern college, Anytown gave one big gasp of amazement.

I have described Mrs. Sholes to you. As a bride she was not prepossessing and she did not grow in beauty. She was dowdy and careless about her appearance; all of her time was given in trying to instill culture in her husband and in Anytown. It was the irony of fate that Marcus Sholes was meticulously neat and careful in his dress, his person and his surroundings and I often thought how he must suffer from his wife's slovenliness.

Marcus Sholes was assistant cashier of our bank, capable and efficient in his work and not a bad fellow at all. But his personality was far from striking and a much less dominant woman than Mrs. Sholes could have subjugated him easily.

Mrs. Sholes was a good wife but many Anytown people used to pity the old man for the queer trick fate had played upon him. For my part, I never forgot how he used to taunt me about being tied to a wife's apron strings and I thought his punishment was just.

Horoscope

Copyright, 1924, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Astrologers read this as an unfortunate day, likely to prove true to traditions associated with Friday the Thirteenth. Saturn, Jupiter and Uranus are all in malefic aspect.

While this rule prevails it is wise to concentrate on what is certain and to avoid all possible risks.

Persons not young may be especially difficult to deal with, and employers of every age should be humored, or even flattered, the seers declare.

There is a sign indicating a revolt against tradition and a desire to overthrow the established order of things.

Politicians may expect a conflict between conservative and radical principles which will causes surprises when votes are counted.

Leaders in business and the professions will suffer from envious competitors. Selfishness and greed will gain power among individuals.

This is not an auspicious planetary government for farmers or fruit raisers, for they may suffer losses from more than one cause.

Much illogical and distorted thinking is indicated by the stars, which presage extreme susceptibility to wrong impressions.

Labor is subject to a sway making for discontent and many strikes. There will be much unemployment as the summer advances.

Wages in certain lines of work will fall, if the stars are read aright, and there will be many economic readjustments before the new year.

Women are warned that, despite the recent spread of vanity which is not ashamed, there will be increase in the vogue of artificial aids to beauty.

Extremes in social service and social uselessness will be manifested by women in the coming month, for on them will be placed great public responsibilities, if the seers are to be believed.

Persons whose birth date it is should prepare for a year in which they will prosper most by remaining in old grooves of work.

Children born on this day may have many ups and downs in life. These subjects of Gemini probably will desire change and variety of occupation.

Star-gazing still breeds sentiment, whether in the wide open spaces or at the movies.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The story so far:

Mrs. Pitman, who tells the story, ran away from home to marry, and was never reconciled to her old Pittsburgh family, although she returned to her home town to live after she became a widow. She kept boarders in what was then lower Allegheny, where, because there were floods every year, rents were cheap. One March there was an unusually high flood. Miss Jennie Brice, as she was known on the stage, was having an unusually quarrelsome time with her husband, Mr. Ladley. Mrs. Pitman overheard them talking with a man, and Miss Brice said, "That's all very well, but what about that prying she-devil that runs the house?" That night the water rose high, and in the middle of the night another boarder, Mr. Reynolds, woke Mrs. Pitman to say somebody had just rowed away in the boat she had tied to the stairs in the lower hall. Mrs. Pitman later saw Mr. Ladley returning. He said he had been out for medicine for his wife. Peter, the dog, finds a slipper of Mrs. Ladley's floating in the parlor, and later a big knife of Mrs. Pitman's, with the blade broken. Mr. Ladley offers to pay Mrs. Pitman for a pillow slip he says was burned with a cigarette, and says his wife really was not ill, but went away in the night. A benevolent old gentleman, rowing around to feed stranded animals, stops at Mrs. Pitman's, and offers to help her. His name is Holcombe. They discover that an onyx clock from the mantelpiece in Ladley's room is missing. They also find a blood-stained towel. Mr. Howell, a young newspaper man, comes to help Holcombe. Mrs. Pitman finds a slip of paper on which is written, "Rope, knife, shoe, towel, Horn—" Lida Harvey, Mrs. Pitman's niece, who has never seen her, comes to the house with Howell. Mr. Holcombe comes to live in the Ladley's room. He takes some of Ladley's whiskey and it poisons him. Mrs. Pitman sees Jennie Brice's fur coat in Molly Maguire's yard next door. She recognizes Mr. Howell's voice as the one she heard in the Ladley's room the day before the disappearance. He admits it. Mr. Ladley comes back and takes the room he and his wife had before the flood, under that occupied by Mr. Holcombe. When Ladley's room is repapered, an arrangement of mirrors is concealed in it so that Holcombe can seen everything that goes on. Through this periscope he sees a visitor, Bronson, business manager of the Liberty Theater, bring Ladley money and hears them speak of Eliza Schaeffer and Llewellyn. He sees Ladley reading in the papers the announcement of a body found in the flood waters.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XVII—THE DROWNING DOG

That is the last entry in the notebook for that day. Mr. Holcombe called me in great excitement shortly after ten and showed me the item. Neither of us doubted for a moment that it was Jennie Brice who had been found. He started for Sewickley that same afternoon, and he probably communicated with the police before he left. For once or twice I saw Mr. Graves, the detective, sauntering past the house.

Mr. Ladley ate no dinner. He went out at four, and I had Mr. Reynolds follow him. But they were both back in a half-hour. Mr. Reynolds reported that Mr. Ladley had bought some headache tablets and some bromide powders to make him sleep.

Mr. Holcombe came back that evening. He thought the body was that of Jennie Brice, but the head was gone. He was much depressed, and did not immediately go back to the periscope. I asked if the head had been cut off or taken off by a steamer; he was afraid the latter, as a hand was gone, too.

It was about eleven o'clock that night that the doorbell rang. It was Mr. Graves with a small man behind him. I knew the man; he lived in a shanty-boat not far from my house—a curious affair with shelves full of dishes and tinware. In the spring he would be towed up the Monongahela a hundred miles or so and float down, tying at different landings and selling his wares. Timothy Senft was his name. We called him Tim.

Mr. Graves motioned me to be quiet. Both of us knew that behind the parlor door Ladley was probably listening.

"Sorry to get you up, Mrs. Pitman," said Mr. Graves, "but this man says he has bought beer here today. That won't do, Mrs. Pitman."

"Beer! I haven't such a thing in the house. Come in and look," I snapped. And the two of them went back to the kitchen.

"Now," said Mr. Graves, when I had shut the door, "where's the dog's-meat man?"

"Upstairs."

"Bring him quietly."

I called Mr. Holcombe, and he came eagerly, notebook and all. "Ah," he said, when he saw Tim. "So you've turned up!"

"It seems, Mr. Dog's—Mr. Holcombe," said Mr. Graves, "that you are right, partly, anyhow. Tim here did help a man with a boat that night—"

"Threw him a rope, sir," Tim broke in "He'd got out in the current, and what with the ice, and his not knowing much about a boat, he'd have kept on to New Orleans if I hadn't caught him—or Kingdom Come."

"Exactly. And what time did you say this was?"

"Between three and four last Sunday night—or Monday morning. He said he couldn't sleep and went out in a boat, meaning to keep in close to shore. But he got drawn out in the current."

"Where did you see him first?"

"By the Ninth street bridge."

"Did you hail him?"

"He saw my light and hailed me. I was making fast to a coal barge after one of my ropes had busted."

"You threw the line to him there?"

"No, sir. He tried to work in to shore. I ran along River avenue to below the Sixth street bridge. He got pretty close in there and I threw him a rope. He was about done up."

"Would you know him again?"

"Yes, sir. He gave me five dollars, and said to say nothing about it. He didn't want anybody to know he had been such a fool."

They took him quietly upstairs then and let him look through the periscope. He identified Mr. Ladley absolutely.

When Tim and Mr. Graves had gone, Mr. Holcombe and I were left alone in the kitchen. Mr. Holcombe leaned over and patted Peter as he lay in his basket.

"We've got him, old boy," he said. "The chain is just about complete. He'll never kick you again."

But Mr. Holcombe was wrong, not about kicking Peter—although I don't believe Mr. Ladley ever did that again—but in thinking we had him.

I washed that next morning, Monday, but all the time I was rubbing and starching and hanging out my mind was with Jennie Brice. The sight of Molly Maguire, next door, at the window, rubbing and brushing at the fur coat, only made things worse.

At noon when the Maguire youngsters came home from school, I bribed Tommy, the youngest, into the kitchen, with the promise of a doughnut.

"I see your mother has a new fur coat," I said, with the plate of doughnuts just beyond his reach.

"Yes'm."

"She didn't but it?"

"She didn't but it. Say, Mrs Pitman, gimme that doughtnut."

"Oh, so the coat washed in!"

"No'm. Pap found it, down by the Point, on a cake of ice. He thought it was a dog, and rowed out for it."

Well, I hadn't wanted the coat, as far as that goes; I'd managed well enough without furs for twenty years or more. But it was a satisfaction to know that it had not floated into Mrs. Maguire's kitchen and spread itself at her feet, as one may say. However, that was not the question, after all. The real issue was that if it was Jennie Brice's coat, and was found across the river on a cake of ice, then one of two things was certain: either Jennie Brice's body wrapped in the coat had been thrown into the water, out in the current, or she herself, hoping to incriminate her husband, had flung her coat into the river.

I told Mr. Holcombe, and he interviewed Joe Maguire that afternoon. The upshot of it was that Tommy had been correctly informed. Joe had witnesses who had lined up to see him rescue a dog, and had beheld his return in triumph with a wet and soggy fur coat. At three o'clock Mrs. Maguire, instructed by Mr. Graves, brought the coat to me for identification, turning it about for my inspection, but refusing to take her hands off it.

"If her husband says to me that he wants it back, well and good," she said, "but I don't give it up to nobody but him. Some folks I know of would be glad enough to have it."

UNIFORM WIDTH IS ASSURED FOR FOURTH STREET

Necessary Land for Rights Of Way Dedicated From Burbank to Avenue

Fourth street, from the Burbank city limits to Grand View avenue, will have a uniform width of forty feet, it was reported at the meeting of the Fourth Street Improvement association held last night in the Grand View school, as dedications of the necessary property have been made since the last meeting. A large number of interested property owners attended the meeting, at which J. H. Randall presided.

Mr. Kohl, in his report, stated that the block between Winchester and Justin and the school block between Justin and Ruberta were the only sections of the street on which dedications have not been obtained. The question of the type of paving to be used is to be taken up at the next meeting on July 10.

Urges Bond Vote

Mrs. Buchkman called attention to the coming library bond election on July 8, and the voting place for the citizens in the northwest section was designated as the fire station on Glenwood road. It was also announced at this time that the mass meeting on matters pertaining to the school system would me held shortly after the first of September.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the City Council requesting that guard rails on Grand View avenue be removed and that the gutter and curbs be altered to permit traffic to enter on the north side of Fourth street west of Grand View. He was also directed to request of the Pacific Electric company that their right-of-way on Fourth street be cleared of weeds.

May Lower Road

Other matters pertaining to the improvement of the district, were brought up, and the chairman on roads, parks and general beautification was requested to ascertain what plans have been made for improving the grounds around the new reservoir on Western avenue. Mr. Randall then told those assembled of the proposed project of lowering Los Feliz boulevard to run beneath the Southern Pacific tracks and reported on the progress made by the Planning Commission in connection with the new Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena boulevard.

It was decided last night that an effort should be made to enlarge the membership of the organization and the chairman of the publicity and membership committee was directed to get out a circular to be distributed among the citizens of the northwest section. Arrangements were also made to have a rousing meeting on July 10 with a good speaker present.

May Extend Widening

Since the Western Avenue Improvement association property owners have decided to pave and widen Western avenue to an eighty foot thoroughfare from San Fernando road to Victory boulevard, it is probable that a movement will be started to widen the avenue from San Fernando road to Mountain street. The officers are considering calling a special meeting to take up the question.

VANITY SALON TO OPEN TOMORROW

New Modern Beauty Parlor Installed In Security Bank Building

Mrs. Ina C. Rankin will open for inspection tomorrow the "Vanity Salon," a modern beauty parlor which she has established in Room 300, Security Bank building. The public has been invited to inspect the beautifully equipped parlor when going through the bank building during the public reception tomorrow afternoon and night.

The "Vanity Salon" contains four booths, one especially equipped for facial work, and another for shampooing. All four can be used for marceling. All kinds of beauty work will be handled by Mrs. Rankin and her assistant, Mrs. Vera White, with the exception of permanent waving.

Carry Facial Articles

The best of equipment has been installed in the four booths. The waiting room has been delightfully furnished in mahogany. The parlor was equipped by Walter E. Ulich, of Los Angeles, and the draperies in the reception room were made by George E. Lyons of 1300 South Brand boulevard.

A large line of toilet articles will be carried in the shop for the benefit of patrons, Miss Rankin announces. The parlor will remain open until 10 o'clock on Tuesday and Friday nights, when Mr. Williams, a hair-bobbing expert from Los Angeles, will be in attendance

Coolidge And Dawes!

Here's a picture of CHARLES G. DAWES, named as Calvin Coolidge's running mate on the Republican ticket after Ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois received the nomination but positively declined it. Dawes is former director of the United States budget and was leader of the reparations economic commission.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

CLEVELAND, June 13.—Calvin Coolidge and General Charles G. Dawes! Behind this ticket Republican leaders got together in Cleveland today and laid the ground work for the long and arduous campaign.

It will be a hectic campaign. That much is assured, irrespective of whom the Democrats nominate at New York two weeks hence. Dawes is one of the most picturesque men in public life.

And in the west there looms the disturbing shadow of Senator Robert La Follette, whose followers here in Cleveland demonstrated their complete lack of sympathy with the whole G. O. P. structure.

Hot Fight Looms

General Dawes probably will carry the brunt of the Republican attack in the west. President Coolidge has already given Republican leaders to understand that he himself will conduct a quiet campaign. He plans to stay in Washington, radio his words from the White House and only occasionally strike out with a personal appearance before an audience.

The picture of a three-cornered personal campaign through the west with "Hell 'n Maria" Dawes giving battle to the eloquent and fiery La Follette on the one hand and the Democratic nominee on the other, was sufficient today to fire the imagination of the weary organization leaders and the home bound delegates.

No movie thriller ever gave its audience a more sensational windup than did this Republican convention that met so prosaically and calmly three days ago to nominate Calvin Coolidge.

Sharply pointed daggers were still flying thick and fast today among the organization leaders over the fiasco that resulted in the nomination of Frank O. Lowden and his subsequent rejection of the nomination—the first time in the history of major political parties that a man has turned down such a high honor once his friends conferred it on him.

Exchange of Words

Harsh words were exchanged concerning the Lowden nomination between William M. Butler, the president's personally selected campaign manager and leaders from New York and Pennsylvania, whose dramatic act in throwing their strength to Lowden at the end of the second ballot on the vice presidency resulted in Lowden's nomination.

Nor did the organization leaders on the floor, perspiring in the midst of milling delegates, take kindly to the efforts of Butler on the platform to try to force the nomination of Herbert Hoover after Lowden had returned the crown with a tart message that smacked of weariness over having to repeat the "no" so many times.

Butler's efforts to put over Hoover was promptly met with the nomination of Dawes. It was accomplished by organization leaders from New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and scattering southern and western states.

Conflicting Orders

The floor managers were as tired as the delegates, probably more so. They had been getting orders all day, conflicting orders, first on this man and then for that, involving the political destinies of half a dozen men—Borah of Idaho; Kenyon of Iowa; Curtis of Kansas; Burton of Ohio; Sanders of Indiana; Hoover of California—and they were heartily tired of orders.

Some of these they did not follow out and they appealed to Coolidge at the White House by long distance telephone. They refused to take Kenyon of Iowa, even though Butler assured them that he was the White House choice. They had had the stage set for Borah upon Butler's orders and then Borah turned down the nomination. They themselves had set the stage for Curtis, only to have Butler turn out the lights on them. They had tried to set the stage again for Sanders, after talking with President Coolidge from a telephone in the basement but the delegates demurred. They had never heard of Sanders. Then came the dramatic climax of the convention getting out of hand and nominating Lowden.

Proposes Hoover

Butler sought out Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania just as the chairman was rapping the final session into order.

"Hoover," he said.

"It's too late," replied Reed.

He glanced to where Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, sat imperturbably at the head of the 79 delegates from the Keystone state.

"It's too late," repeated Reed. "It's Dawes—and on the first ballot."

Butler stalked back to the platform, his face reddening.

And it was Dawes—on the first ballot.

CAST TO REPEAT PERFORMANCE OF COMEDY SUCCESS

Community Service Players Score Hit In 'Kempy' At High School

Lovers of drama were delightfully entertained last night at the Harvard High school by the comedy, "Kempy," given by a cast of the drama department of Community Service. A second performance is to be given Saturday night at the same place.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Max Lynn Green, the drama department is really doing worthwhile work, as evidenced by the plays that have been presented. Again Granville Forbes Sturgis is directing and his artistic work is to be noted throughout the presentation of "Kempy."

Forms Contrast

"Kempy" was chosen by Mrs. Green as a vehicle for the local cast, and formed a marked contrast to "Mice and Men," the former offering.

George Jensen portrays "Kempy," the architect by desire, but plumber by trade. Then there is Harold Brewster, dramatic instructor at the Glendale Union High school, who gives a wonderful interpretation of the character of "Pa Bence," a retired harness maker, who has a strenuous time keeping up with his very modern daughters.

Opposite Mr. Brewster is Mrs. H. C. Vandewater in the character of "Ma Bence." The eldest daughter and the only married one is portrayed by Mrs. Harold Brewster, whose talent as a dramatic artist, is far above that of the amateur.

Other characters are Kate, played by Mrs. Charles Gowan; Mrs. George Hastings, as Ruth; Lewis Sargent, Ben, and Paul Morgan, Duke.

These Community Service plays are featured by a happy spirit of friendliness, for at each performance Mrs. Green has a group of hostesses to greet those attending and after the final curtain serve punch. Hostesses for "Kempy" are Mesdames R. Ernest Tucker, Alexander Mitchell, Malvern Barker and Genevieve Goss.

VISION OF FRIED CHICKEN FADING

Van Nuys Odd Fellows Take First Round In Games For Big Banquet

Glendale Odd Fellows saw their visions of a free chicken dinner vanishing in thin air last night when the Van Nuys lodge visited this city in a body and defeated the local lodge in the first of three 500 games, the loser of the series to treat the winner to a fried chicken banquet.

The Van Nuys delegation proved too much for the Glendale sharks, winning by a score of 5730 points to 3690. The locals, however, are not discouraged, by this first defeat and are already planning a method of attack that will result in winning the next two games. A light lunch was served at 11 o'clock.

The Glendale lodge of Odd Fellows report that some wonderful work has been accomplished recently by the charity and sick committees, the members of which have been working early and late in carrying out the charitable program. The hall was crowded with many visiting brothers last night.

District Deputy Grand Master Carl E. Wild of the Van Nuys lodge was presented at the lodge meeting preceding card games and spoke to the members on Odd Fellowship. In the absence of Noble Grand H. T. Stevens, Vice Grand H. W. Hollenbeck filled the chair. The routine business closed at 9:45, and the members of both lodges adjourned to the club rooms for the 500 contest. Carl Schwitters is captain of the Glendale card players.

CONFER RANK IN PYTHIAN'S LODGE

Grand Lodge Delegate Tells Of Home's Dedication At Santa Rosa

The rank of esquire was conferred at the meeting last night of the Glendale lodge, No. 331, Knights of Pythias.

In addition, Hal E. Leedom, vice chancellor of the lodge and Scoutmaster of Troop 1, Boy Scouts, gave a report on the activities of the Boy Scouts sponsored by the Knights of Pythias. He urged all Knights to heartily support the Boy Scouts under their care.

Tells of Dedication

C. A. Valentine, delegate to the grand lodge, told of attending the dedication of the Pythian home near Santa Rosa. This home is located on the beautiful home place of Senator Kern, twenty miles from Santa Rosa. This property was recently purchased by the grand lodge of California. The spacious buildings were dedicated during the grand lodge meeting.

At the meeting next Tuesday night the rank of knight will be exemplified by the degree team. A large delegation of members from Van Nuys Lodge No. 25, will be present.

At the close of initiation a lunch is to be served.

'NEWSIES' GIVE GIFT OF FLOWERS

Outstanding among the happy features of "at home" week at The Glendale Evening News office was the honor paid A. T. Cowan, proprietor and publisher, by more than fifty newsboys.

One afternoon, early in the week, Mr. Cowan was called into the carriers' room in the basement. There he was confronted by the more than fifty boys, one of whom stepped forward to present a beautiful basket of flowers to him.

The presentation was made with a few words of congratulation to Mr. Cowan on the completion and formal opening of the bigger Glendale Evening News office.

In accepting the gift Mr. Cowan replied with words of appreciation for the gift and for the fine service the carriers are giving The Glendale Evening News.

GLASS OUTLINES PLATFORM PLANS

Announces Resolutions That Will Be Presented at Democratic Meet

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The first definite indications as to what the Democratic platform this year will contain were given here today when Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, whose personally written platform was adopted by the Democrats in 1920, made public a draft of the resolutions which he will present to the forthcoming Democratic national convention in New York.

Senator Glass' platform already has been adopted, as it was four years ago, by the Democratic state convention in Virginia with instructions to carry it before the national convention.

RANGER COUNCIL PLANS POTLATCH

Hoodoo Number Thirteen Is Defied by Youths In Annual Banquet

Modern boys have evidently abandoned many of the superstitions that were popular in the days of their fathers and grandfathers. At least Friday, the 13th, seems to have lost most of its terrors for the members of the first annual "Potlatch" of the Rangers to be held in the main dining room of the Los Angeles City club at 6:30 tonight.

Not only is the banquet on the night of Friday, the 13th, but it is also being held on the thirteenth floor of the Chapman building and exactly thirteen boys from the Glendale council have signed up for the big jubilee affair. Are the boys worried? Not so you'd notice it.

Heavy Hail Storm In Illinois; Loss Over Half Million

GALESBURG, Ill., June 13.—Damage of approximately half million dollars was done here in the worst hailstorm in this section in years.

Shrapnel-like icy stones bombarded the city for more than twenty minutes and left many windows devoid of panes. Huge trees felled by the strong wind tore down electric wires and the city was in darkness for hours.

Leaves cut from trees stopped sewer openings and caused flooding of streets. Gardens were wrecked.

Ice to the depth of six inches covered the streets after the storm.

Famers in the vicinity reported some loss of livestock.

FACULTY MEMBER PLANS MARRIAGE

Earl T. Brown's Wedding to Take Place at Close of School Term

Members of the faculty of the Glendale High school are congratulating Earl T. Brown, head of the science department, on his approaching marriage to Miss Marjorie Elizabeth Peck, graduate of the University of Southern California and popular member of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority, which is to take place immediately after the close of the school year.

The wedding will take place on June 22 at the home of the bride, with only the relatives of the bride and groom and a few friends in attendance. The beautiful gardens of the Peck home will be the scene of the ceremony.

Fraternity Member

Mr. Brown is also a graduate of U. S. C. and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He has been a member of the faculty at the local high school for three years and has made many friends in this city. He is also widely known among the faculty and students at U. S. C. because of his active interest in activities on the campus.

The itinerary of the honeymoon trip is being kept a secret, but Mr. Brown said that he expected to spend the latter part of the summer near Arrowhead lake, where he will construct a cabin on property that he has purchased in the vicinity of the famous resort.

SENIORS GUESTS OF JUNIOR CLASS

Graduates Are Entertained At Brookside Park In Picnic Program

Coming as the first of a series of social functions coincident with the commencement period, the annual junior-senior entertainment was being held this afternoon at Brookside park, Pasadena, with a large number of the graduating class from the Glendale high school enjoying the program that had been arranged for their entertainment by the juniors.

Members of both classes were dismissed for the day at 2 o'clock and started immediately for the park by motor car. Special transportation was provided for those who did not have machines. The program for the afternoon included a wide range of athletic events, besides the regular attractions at the park. An orchestra composed of juniors was taken along to provide jazz music for the benefit of those who spent the afternoon in the plunge.

Sports Program

Other events scheduled for the entertainment include a baseball game between the two classes, novelty races of various sorts, tight rope walking, and many other features that are expected to result in much hilarity among the contestants and onlookers.

An elaborate tamale supper is to be served at 7 o'clock with a second course of ice cream and cake to follow. Stunts that will characterize prominent members of the senior class have been arranged by the juniors to be presented during the supper hour and afterwards. Miss Hill, of the faculty, has assisted Don McMillan, president of the junior class in making the arrangements.

Initiate Candidates In DeMolay Chapter

Initiatory degrees were conferred upon two candidates at the weekly meeting of the Glendale chapter, Order of DeMolay, at the Masonic Temple last night. Discussion in the business meeting which followed the ceremony centered on the trip to Eagle Rock t oput on degrees before the chapter there tonight.

Both the initiatory and DeMolay degrees will be conferred on candidates at the Eagle Rock Masonic temple by the officers from the local chapter. They will leave the Glendale temple at 7 o'clock accompanied by a delegation of the active members.

It was announced at last night's meeting that Wesley Goodfellow, one of the most active members of the Glendale chapter, has recently been honored by the election to the presidency of the Associated Chapters of Southern California.

PATRON PRAISES MURPHY PROGRAM

C. F. Steppler Raps Reports That Comedians' Show Is 'Off Color'

The following self-explanatory communication has been sent to The Glendale Evening News by C. F. Steppler, 404 Ivy street, Glendale, with the request that it be published:

To Whom It May Concern:—This is to certify that I, C. F. Steppler, and family, am at any time ready to swear that the show conducted by Mr. Murphy, in Casa Verdugo, Los Angeles county, known as Murphy's Comedians, is not immoral, nor has there been any immoral singing in the place since it came to Glendale. I have seen every production put on up to date, and am ready to swear that the story going around is propaganda caused to be circulated by persons in a fit of jealousy caused by hoggishness for all the business in the city of Glendale.

I will also swear that I, while going to one of these places of business to see a show, was charged the regular fee, but, when I got inside, there was nothing more than standing room. I decided to go out and demanded my money, and was told that if I would wait until after the show was over, I could get my money back. Not having patience and time to wait one hour and a half or two hours to get the refund of such a small amount, I told the party that if they needed the money that bad to keep it, and so they did.

I will also swear that I, as a citizen of Los Angeles county since 1887, have seen more immorality in the motion picture shows on one vaudeville night here in Glendale than there could be in Murphy's show if it runs a year with the same class of show that they have been putting on since they have been in Glendale.

As a show lover I have been to almost all the shows and playhouses in Los Angeles, and can truthfully say that Murphy's show is as clean and as moral as any I have seen in my life.

I also challenge anyone to prove that the shows on vaudeville night at the Glendale motion picture theatres are more moral than the shows shown by Murphy's tent show.

(Signed)
C. F. STEPPLER,

Stork Hovering Over Former Kaiser's Home

Black and Yellow Colors Chosen for Next Year's Plates

SACRAMENTO, June 13.—Automobile plates for 1925 will carry black numerals on a yellow background, it was announced today by Will R. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles.

Pneumatic-tired trucks and other commercial vehicles, however, will be given plates in which red and white will be the colors.

Experts declare that the combination of yellow and black for passenger cars will afford a higher degree of visibility than any other possible combination of colors, far surpassing green and white plates now in use.

Orders will soon be placed for the 1925 supply of plates and motor vehicle departments in other states have been notified that California has made selection of yellow and black.

OFFER BARGAINS AT LINEN STORE

Pre-Inventory Sale Draws Throngs of Shoppers to Buy Goods

A pre-inventory sale of ten days' duration is announced by the Irish Linen store at 117 North Brand boulevard, and this means a very busy time for the sales force at this old established shopping center of Glendale.

Wide ranges of choice are always offered shoppers at the Irish Linen store, and during this big sales event many temptations will be offered shoppers at extremely low prices.

Bargains Offered

The sale has been planned in order that various lines may be reduced before the time for inventory.

A large crowd of shoppers, eager to take advantage of the thoroughly honest and most liberal price reductions, was on hand early yesterday morning for the opening day of the sale.

Some of the offerings are to be found in silk goods, ginghams, yard goods, domestic dry goods, linen, hoisery, blankets, toweling.

CLASSES DECIDE BASEBALL TITLE

A-7-11 Team Is Champion of Wilson Ave. School After Two Games

The excitement that has prevailed during the seventh grade noon ball schedule at Wilson avenue school reached its height this week when the A-7-II class team carried off the second game in the championship series thereby winning for themselves the school championship in the seventh grade and considerable personal glory.

The A-7-II's beat the A-7-I team, champions of the first series with a score of 7-6 and then outplayed the almost invincible A-7-V team with a final score of 13-11. Charles Caballero, captain of the young champions, pitched both games but states that the victory is due entirely to the splendid support on the part of his men. The champion team lines up as follows: c—Harold Caballero, p—Charles Caballero, 1b—Walter Hilton, ss—Gwyn Roher, 2b—Teddy Edwards, ss—Edgar Blue, 3b—David Chasse, lf—Elbert Beach, cf—George Miller, rf—Milan Plasterer.

Mrs. Carrie S. Maclennan is class teacher for the victorious A-7-II's.

TEACHERS ENJOY FACULTY PICNIC

Program of Novel Stunts Held at Griffith Park by High School Staff

Casting aside the dignity required of them as educators, the faculty of the Glendale High school journeyed to Griffith park yesterday afternoon to frolic together in the semi-annual faculty picnic, nearly the entire number, which totals over one hundred, taking the outing.

Miss Mary Hairgrove, who was in charge of arrangements for the affair, had planned a novel program to be carried out at the park. A delicious fried chicken supper prepared by the domestic science department under the supervision of Miss Mary Browning was taken to the park and maliciously destroyed at 6 o'clock.

One of the features of the affair was the presentation of gifts from the faculty to four of their number who have announced their intention of departing on matrimonial adventures soon after the close of the school year. Those so honored were Earl T. Brown, Walter Gorman, Howard Butterfield and Miss Vincent.

The faculty at a recent meeting elected the following officers for next year: president, O. McDowell; vice president, Maude Soper; secretary, Miss Veazey; treasurer, Eugene Wolfe.

BEEFSTEAK WILL BE MASON'S MENU

Annual Dinner Will Be Held At Whiting's Ranch at La Crescenta

Beefsteak in large quantities will be the major attraction at the fifteenth annual beefsteak dinner being staged tomorrow afternoon by Glendale Masons at Whiting's ranch, La Crescenta. Leaving the temple at 2:30 o'clock the caravan will parade to the ranch headed by the Sciots' band.

The annual baseball game staged in connection with the feed is in charge of Emil Kiefer and G. A. Campbell. The afternoon program will include a number of field events besides the baseball game which have been arranged by Charles Wolfe. The arrangements for the big dinner which will be served at 5:30 o'clock are in the hands of William Moody and A. H. Lapham.

AID FIREMEN TO CUT FIRE RISKS

Women Will Cooperate with Department to Reduce Hazard of Flames

EAGLE ROCK, June 13.—The Women's Twentieth Century club will work with the local fire department during the summer to reduce fire hazard in this community, and the following members have been appointed to carry on the work: Miss Helen Pratt and Mrs. Maude Baldwin Lewis, district 5; Miss Fannie Bailey and Mrs. Sherill B. Osborne, district 11; Mrs. Claude Williams and Mrs. W. B. Weidlofft, district 2; Mrs. F. C. Eckert, district 4; and Mrs. Rufus Morris with Mrs. Henry Schinker, district 3. Miss Charlotte Stahl has been appointed temporary chairman. The women in each district will supervise the work, making calls on owners of the various lots that must be cleared of dry weeds and rubbish. They will make reports to those who are in charge of the actual work of burning off the properties.

It is the desire of the fire department to carry out an even more successful campaign than last year, when residents took a definite interest in the efforts of the department to safeguard their property. During the summer months the fire department of Eagle Rock has always had a difficult situation to cope with, making many trips to fight grass fires, most of which can be forestalled if property is cleared of the dry grass before the real summer season begins.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. J. E. Donnell of 202 Windermere avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Bertga Belcher, county superintendent of the Flower Missions, was present.

Mrs. Lena Kofoed has returned home from Philadelphia to spend the summer with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Hansen of 2720 Rock Glen avenue.

Mrs. Hattie Merrill of 5062 La Roda street plans to go to Yellowstone National Park this month. Mrs. Merrill is past president of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Mattie Morris of St. Johns, Michigan, has arrived for a visit with her sister, Mrs. E. J. Bradner, wife of the pastor of the Methodist church.

HOME INFLUENCE FIRST, IS CLAIM

'Too Many Jazz Mothers,' Says Justice in Address to P.-T. Members

BURBANK, June 13.—At the final Parent-Teacher Association meeting of the Thomas A. Edison school year, Judge A. A. Crawford declared there are too many "jazz mothers" and urged women to devote more time to their children. The home influence, he said, came above school and church, in the great trilogy of modern education.

The judge said that his nineteen years of court experience told him what the trouble was and just where it began. He made the statement that if he had his way, he would put every kindergarten school in the United States out of business in short order, because every mother should be capable of taking care of her children until they were six years old, and that until a child was that age, it needed its mother.

At the annual election of officers of the Women's Congregational club, held recently with Mrs. B. F. Farley of Verdugo avenue, the following officers were chosen for the coming year: president, Miss M. Agnes Geel; vice-president, Mrs. J. H. Barnum; secretary, Mrs. J. T. Bowen; treasurer, Mrs. R. R. Obuchon; work committee, chairman, Mrs. J. W. Smith; missionary committee, chairman, Mrs. Frank Lindley, and calling committee, chairman, Mrs. B. F. Farley. The members presented Mrs. E. W. Morgan with a book in appreciation of her faithful help and services during the past year as their president.

The club voted to hold a cake and pie sale on Saturday, June 21, and Mrs. Arthur Beveridge was made chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Gile of Banning, who own a court on Magnolia avenue, spent last week here. They have now returned to their home in Banning.

School Children See Lloyd In Film Play

LA CRESCENTA, June 13.—The children of the La Crescenta school enjoyed seeing that funny farce of Harold Lloyd's "Safety First." The picture was given under the management of Principal T. Blanford.

Girls of the eighth grade graduating class have voted against any display of graduating finery, and will wear white middies and pleated skirts.

Thirty pupils will be presented with diplomas this year. Announcement of the exercises will be made later.

Coin metal made from a mixture of bronze and aluminum, which experts claim cannot easily be counterfeited, and which is expected to replace the paper money now used for exchange in France, was found after many years of tests.

VERDUGO LEGION POST ENTERTAINS

Prayer for Invalid Members Opens Varied Program At Montrose

MONTROSE, June 13.—Verdugo Hills Post No. 288 of the American Legion, with Captain Southwick commanding, kept open house last night for members and friends.

The program was opened by a prayer broadcasted over the radio from Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, by Aimee Semple McPherson with a special appeal for friends and neighbors who are ill, including Verdugo Hills Post historian, Miss Margaret Weeden, who is very ill in St. Luke's hospital in San Francisco.

Others Ask Prayer

Other local people who are ill but requested to tune in were Miss Alvord of Highway Highlands; Mr. Ross of La Crescenta and F. E. Lapo at California Lutheran hospital, Los Angeles.

The Boy Scout Troop of Montrose gave a setting-up drill and the salute to the flag.

Philip Lovell gave an interesting talk on building a Muscular Body, the Lunch Box and Boy Hygiene. Scout Executive Harvey R. Cheesman gave a good story in true Scout style.

Mr. Braun, better known as the Paddling Beaver, contributed a humorous number and his pianologues proved most popular.

Mr. Newcomber of Burbank gave a rendering of James Whitcomb Riley's "The Clover" and "My Philosophy;" as his second encore he gave "Sousa's Band."

New Scoutmaster

Miss Ida Gertrude Edens of Glendale won favor instantly with her beautiful voice and charming manner. Particularly appealing was Miss Edens' presentation of "The Sunshine of Your Smile."

R. E. Murdy, late of the U. S. Marine corps, was introduced as the new scoutmaster.

Commander Sullivan introduced Mrs. Nellie Snow Hyer of Glendale who, in turn, introduced Mrs. L. E. Spence, who gave a talk on Woman's Auxiliary Work with the American Legion, after which Mrs. McBryde of Glendale assisted the local women in signing up for their own organization. The folowing women joined: Mesdames E. L. Sullivan, A. E. Baron, G. H. Nelson, R. I. Lowe, F. B. Holloway and C. R. Jones. The women will serve the supper next Wednesday when the Buddies entertain the San Pedro post.

Flag Address Will Feature Radio Bill

LA CRESCENTA, June 13.—Flag Day will be fittingly celebrated by Mrs. Charles Turck, who will broadcast her famous talk on our flag. Mrs. Turck spent much time in research work before completing what is, perhaps the most authentic and interesting story of the flag. The story will broadcast over KHJ some time between 6:45 and 7:30 p. m., to give the hospitals and shut-ins an opportunity to hear Mrs. Turck.

Mr. Murdy of Montrose has entered the Glendale business field, where he is now conducting his own parcel delivery business.

Mrs. D. Foy of Verdugo City entertained a group of friends at a picnic supper party in Brookside park, the affair being held in honor of Miss Charlotte's birthday anniversary. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Fraser, Jack and Betty; Mrs. Irene Rose, Doris and Virginia.

Set Opening Date for Oakmont Golf Course

MONTROSE, June 13.—Saturday, June 14, is announced as the official opening of the Oakmont Country club golf course. Many of the local members have been using the temporary course provided for them, and are eagerly looking forward to going around the larger one.

The nine-hole course is in splendid condition for the opening, and practically all the local members will be on hand to celebrate the occasion.

The only men's clothing shop in Montrose changed hands, when the owner, F. R. Harding, sold out to Joe Silver of Glenwood Springs, where he has a similar establishment. Mr. Silver has moved his family here, and intends to enlarge the stock of his Montrose clothing store.

Mr. Harding will, it is stated, enter some other field of business here in the valley.

FINAL LUNCHEON OF SEASON HELD

Event Proves One of Most Brilliant Affairs of Eagle Rock Women's Club

EAGLE ROCK, June 13.—The last women's club luncheon of the season was held Thursday at the clubhouse and stood out as one of the most brilliant affairs of its kind in the hisotry of the club.

Miss Antonio Horack of New York was the luncheon speaker. She is a pupil of Elsie Benedict and also of Miss Luella McComber. She chose the intriguing subject, "Eternal Youth," for her talk before the Women's club.

Mrs. J. J. Carter, whose untiring efforts for the Hollywood bowl are known to all who have taken an interest in that enterprise, was the speaker of the afternoon. A musical program presented Miss Kennedy, charming soloist, who appeared before the club on a former occasion. She was accompanied by Miss Suzanne Joyce Spear. Whistling solos were given by Miss Wakeley, whistler, and Virgil Drengberg, violinist, played several numbers.

Mothers and daughters of the Methodist church were honored guests at a banquet given by the men of the church on June 10.

Men Are Cooks

This was an annual event in the social calendar of the church, and a delightful time was had. The menu was prepared entirely by the masculine chefs the church membership boasts, and the charges were paid by the men, the proceeds donated to the Ladies' Aid society. The menu included spring chicken and 'trimmings."

Following the banquet, which took place at 6:30 o'clock, an excellent program of music and speeches was presented.

Mrs. Hattie S. Merrill of La Roda avenue left by boat on Friday night for San Francisco to visit her son, Frank Merrill, in Berkeley. She will be gone several months. Mr. Merrill and family, with Mrs. Hattie Merrill, will take an auto trip through Oregon, stopping to visit Mrs. Young, sister of Mrs. Merrill, in Twin Falls, Idaho. They will also visit Yellowstone park. Mr. Albert Merrill did not accompany his mother on the trip, being unable to leave his chiropractic practice here.

PENDROYS SCORN THIRTEEN HOODOO

'Unlucky' Date Loses Effect as Eager Buyers Rush to Special Sale

The long-time supposed ill luck of Friday, the thirteenth, was entirely lost sight of today at the Pendroy store at South Brand boulevard and Harvard street, where a "Lucky Thirteen Dollar Day" was an event of paramount success in the history of sales events at this popular shopping center.

Pendroy's store is right in the midst of great growth and prosperity, and the crowds that thronged the store today for the special dollar offerings in all departments called this Friday, the thirteenth, their lucky day.

Add New Customers

Formerly a dollar day was a quarterly event at the Pendroy store and last year the June dollar day feature fell on June 15. But this year the dollar day feature was happily revived on the very luckiest of unlucky days of the year.

A spirit of enthusiasm and happiness was store-wide today as the large sales force served the hundreds of patrons, who came to take advantage of the many splendid offerings.

The big drive for 5000 new customers under way by the Pendroy staff is progressing wonderfully and many new customers were won today through the satisfaction of the big lucky day sale.

Closes School Work, Will Enter College

Miss Dorothy Koepke of the Glen Arms apartments graduated Wednesday from the Westlake School for Girls, in Los Angeles.

Miss Koepke is to spend the first part of the summer in Glendale. It is the plan of the family to move shortly into their new home being completed on Ard Eevin drive in Campbell Heights.

Later in the summer the family may go north for a visit at their home in Oregon. Miss Koepke will probably leave for college in the fall.

Takes pills for years—finds first permanent relief in Kellogg's Bran

Have you found permanent relief from that terrible disease—constipation? The woman whose letter follows discovered—as thousands have discovered—that Kellogg's Bran succeeds when all else fails. This is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. This is what she wrote:

"Gentlemen:

I am so wonderfully happy over my discovery, I feel I must tell the world about it. For years I have been ill continually from constipation, always resorting to pills or the like, never having any permanent relief until I heard of your Krumbled Bran.

Every morning I take two tablespoonfuls before my breakfast—and since the latter part of August I must admit have not experienced one sick spell which I have had for years. I have started my little girl of four years on your Bran, and already I have noticed a change in her. I thank you."

Name and address furnished on request. Write the Kellogg Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic cases of constipation. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Money returned if not effective.

Notice the wonderful nut-like flavor. This flavor is delicious—so different from ordinary, unpalatable brans.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served by America's leading hotels and clubs. Demand Kellogg's Bran. It will bring back your health. Start eating it today. Sold by all grocers.

It's Coolidge and Dawes Talks On 'Americanism' Pathway To Success Some New Features

By Gil A. Cowan

We have with us today "Hell and Maria" Dawes, general, budgeteer, financial adviser to Europe and now nominee for vice president on the Republican ticket.

There will be no end of talk about this Chicagoan stepping in and taking second honors after Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, absolutely refused to accept the nomination.

General Charles G. Dawes will make himself felt, if and when he meets with the cabinet. He will not sit silently by as an observer. Rather, he will sit by and be sufficiently silent until it is time to say "hell."

And, when the general says that word, his mood tells more than Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's dissertations, you bet. Yes, the one little word of four letters carries an expression that only those who know the general personally know how to interpret its meaning.

At the Rotary club yesterday noon Attorney Eugene J. Wix excused himself for having to speak. Then he launched into a dissertation on the American Legion which you all should have heard.

It wasn't so much about the Legion as it was "Americanism." And he drove home to his hearers the necessity of the public voting when he said that less than 25 per cent of the eligible electors take the time to register and then go to the polls and vote.

"In case of a close contest it means we have the rule of 10 to 15 per cent of the people," said Mr. Wix.

Think of it! Only one out of every eight have their sentiments voiced.

Time something was done, eh?

A terrible catastrophe overtook the U. S. S. Mississippi yesterday. Many of its men were killed and others maimed and wounded in two explosions.

But, worse than that, news of the disaster was withheld, it is averred, and only the most meagre reports have been available.

This writer has on past occasions protested the policy of the naval officers in such matters.

Organization—what a wonderful thing. So we were thinking as we glanced through the columns of The Glendale Evening News.

The automobile dealers on their annual high jinks, the Rotary club lunching, the Ad club organizing, the Optimists, Exchange, Kiwanis, Rotary, Merchants, Realty board, Glendale Advancement association, Chamber of Commerce and so on, for it would take a column to mention each and every one of the civic, social and fraternal organizations of this city.

By an interchange of ideas business men are enabled to cope with their daily problems. They get the other fellow's viewpoint. And it is well.

Organization accomplishes that which individual effort cannot attain, yet all organization must be conducted on such a high plane that it shall think and act as a collective group, not as an individual or clique.

Youthful crime is puzzling the nation, according to a dispatch from Robert T. Small, special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News in New York.

And yet it should not be a puzzle insofar as cause is concerned. The clubwomen could tell the psychologists that.

It is simply a matter of environment, which, in the words of the street urchin, "We ain't got."

Yet the boy of the street has a better environment, perhaps, than the youth of today who is coddled in infancy, allowed to do as he or she pleases in adolescence and runs bang smack up against the hardest, sharpest and jazziest civilization the world has ever known.

Talking with a youngster yesterday afternoon we found a spark of genius in a boy just twenty who aspires to be a newspaper man. But the spark lacks a lot of becoming a flame.

And no doubt the flame would flicker out unless he takes kindly to advice.

First of all, the person who succeeds must acquire knowledge. That may be had in school, or in books, or in life's little lessons.

Second, success demands the utmost in health, and the physical fitness of a person is the determining factor in the continuation of one's course.

Third, the man who does things must have indomitable courage which is bred in knowledge and health.

Fourth, diligence and aptitude, combined with the utmost willingness to keep on learning are essential. Everlasting stick-to-itiveness cannot be discounted in reaching the goal.

Boy and girl graduates of Glendale Union High school will do well to read and reread those four points and keep them ever in mind. And remember, too, that thought cannot be dissipated without moral and physical disintegration which spells failure.

Two new features in The Glendale Evening News: Uncle Wiggily illustrated comics and "The Baxter Beasleys." You will enjoy them both.

Gene Carr, who does the Beasleys, originated "The Newlyweds," it is said. He is also creator of "Lady Bountiful."

So look and laugh.

Nearly 400,000 excursionists have been carried by a New Jersey railway so far this year.

SEES CHANGE IN HUMAN FEATURES

British Anatomist Says That Length Is Increasing; Light Is Blamed

By F. A. WRAY

For International News Service.

LONDON, June 13.—The human face is growing longer, according to Sir Arthur Keith, famous British anatomist.

Many strange changes are overtaking the human face, says this professor, who has spent a lifetime in studying the skulls of all races.

The chief change is in the bone of the mouth. This is growing downward and carrying with it the teeth, as a result of which there has been an increase of half an inch in the length of the modern face.

These changes, it seems, are also affecting the upper bones of the face, giving it a downward tendency. They correlate with changes in modern industrial conditions and Professor Keith believes they are due to the absence of light in the big cities of today.

Other Changes Noted

Among other changes which he mentions in the modern skull are:

A contracted palate.

Downward growth of cheek bone.

Teeth sinking backward.

Teeth now twelve millimetres below the teeth of primitive peoples.

Appearance of a sharp ledge of bone between the teeth and the nose.

"These changes are nothing like finished," says Sir Arthur. "I am convinced that the misplacement of the teeth and the resultant contracted palate are connected with such disorders as adenoids."

KIWANIS ENVOYS OFF FOR ANNUAL MEET IN DENVER

Delegates From Glendale, Tujunga Cheered When Train Pulls Out

Friends and relatives of the Glendale and Tujunga delegates to the International Kiwanis convention to be held this year at Denver, gathered at the Southern Pacific station at 11 o'clock this morning to bid them farewell and give them a rousing send off. Large numbers from both clubs were present to give the ten people that made up the party from the two cities a final handshake and "good luck."

Led by J. L. Smith, the Tujunga song leader, the crowd tried out a new song written by Smith and dedicated to the Kiwanis International. A large number of copies of the song which is entitled "Build! Build! Build" are being taken back to Denver and will be distributed among the delegates.

Local Delegates

The special Kiwanis train rolled into the station at 11:20 o'clock and the Glendale delegates joined the hundreds of others from the southland who had boarded the train at Los Angeles. Those attending from the local club are President A. L. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Deal, A. L. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schneider, and H. M. Parker. The three Tujunga delegates are Carroll W. Parcher, J. L. Smith, and A. C. Stover.

The majority of those attending the convention are planning on visiting relatives and friends at points throughout the middle west before returning to Glendale. The convention will be in session from June 16 to 19.

HARROWING SCENE IN 'DEATH' ROOM

Bodies Piled on Door Show Bluejackets Make Hard Fight to Escape

Behind 13-inch walls of white-hot steel the forty-eight gunners were sealed in a cauldron—caught behind a jammed door.

Five officers of the Pacific fleet entered the death chamber today and found the men did not have a chance for their lives.

From the preliminary examination of the turret the officers believe many lives would have been saved if the tiny trapdoor had not melted. The door opened upward into the chamber.

When a hole was cut into the turret to remove the bodies, more than twenty burned corpses were found on top of the door.

Saves Many Lives

Around the trapdoor were found the extended hands of the gunners—with bare fingers they had tried to claw their way from the lethal vault.

The body of Lieutenant Thomas E. Zellars of Long Beach, Cal., was the first removed from the turret. It was found at the water emergency cock.

Officers of the fleet said Zellars' last act, turning on the water, saved the Mississippi from destruction. The lever on which his hand rested in death controlled the doors leading to the powder magazine, as well as the flood water control.

Zellars' last act—pulling the powder magazine doors shut—saved the lives of a thousand on the man-of-war. He was the hero of the sea tragedy.

The three officers who died in the blast were found in the rear section where the range-finders and controls are located. Each was dead at his post.

Lieutenant H. Donald Smith, who was the first man to enter the turret after the explosion, refused today to discuss the fate of his mates. His face, arms and hands were wrapped in oil-soaked bandages. His eyelashes were completely seared off.

Smith would only say today:

"Any man in the navy would have entered the turret, but I happened to be the nearest."

Bodies Against Doors

Others who followed Lieutenant Smith's lead into the hell of flaming gas and heat told how the bodies of their shipmates were found and described the interior of the turret.

The turret is divided into four sections. One partition runs from starboard to port in the rear. Each of the three guns is in a separate chamber. The chambers are connected by steel doors. Rescuers found them partly open, bodies piled against them.

The man-of-war was in secret battle practice with the Idaho, Tennessee and California off San Clemente island, fifty miles from shore, when the blast came.

The explosion rocked the big ship and claimed a toll greatest in peace-time history of the American navy, except the sinking of the Maine.

Face New Dangers

Even after its arrival in Los Angeles harbor after a fast run with its dead and dying, death lurked on the Mississippi. A huge shell exploded in one of the guns and passed within a few yards of the steamship Yale, black with passengers, which was headed out of the harbor for San Diego.

Early today the Mississippi pulled to sea to fire an unexploded shell, said to be lodged in one of the big guns. The precaution of returning to the open sea was taken owing to the danger of another explosion on the man-of-war, it was said, in the harbor, with other ships close by.

Will Lecture

MRS. LAURA R. WALCOTT of Glendale, will address the hairdressers' associations in the leading cities of the country while en route east to Atlantic City.

Mrs. Laura R. Walcott, proprietor of the Walcott Beauty Shop, 136 South Brand boulevard, has been selected as one of the California delegates to attend the annual convention of the National Hairdressers' association that is scheduled to meet at Atlantic City, N. J., from September 8 to 12.

Mrs. Walcott is a charter member of the Hairdressers' and Cosmeticians' Association of Southern California, and at the first of this year was elected secretary of the organization, a position which entails the performance of a wide and varied range of responsibilities.

As an official of the Southern California organization Mrs. Walcott has been widely recognized throughout professional hairdressing circles all over the country, her picture having appeared in many of the trade magazines.

Accompanying Mrs. Walcott on her trip east will be the other delegates from this state, Mrs. Susan Smith Davis of Los Angeles, the president of the organization, and they plan to start on August 1 in order to carry out a lecture schedule in the leading cities of the country en route east. The cities to be visited are Chicago, Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York. In each of these places they will speak before the local associations of hairdressers and cosmeticians as part of a campaign that is now under way to widen the scope of the organization's work all over the country.

Mrs. Walcott will return to Glendale immediately after the close of the convention.

BLAST SURVIVOR REVEALS HORRORS

Sailor Tells of Watching Flames Wipe Out 48 Of His Shipmates

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—Robert McAdin, boatswain's mate of San Francisco, one of the three men believed to have survived from the blast on the U. S. S. Mississippi, calmly smoked a cigarette today as he gave an eyewitness story of how forty-eight of his shipmates went to their deaths.

"Just a puff and then one little flame—then a big one, that filled the turret. It was like a match being put to a pile of celluloid, not loud enough to be heard outside the turret. Guns in the other turrets did not cease firing for ten or fifteen minutes," McAdin related.

"The turret was full of sweating, working men, more crowded than before, because, in addition to the regular gun crew, eight of us from the New Mexico were there for observation.

Second Flare Comes

"They had just about finished loading for the seventh or eighth salvo when the blast came. Barbee, one of the New Mexico men, was killed almost before I realized what had happened. I had scarcely recovered from the first shock when a second flare burst from somewhere behind the gun.

"It felt more like a sudden blaze of fire than an explosion.

"It was red—awfully red—a big pillar of molten red fire—I'll never forget that—funny how a person notices those little things in such moments of tragedy and confusion.

"It seems I'll remember that red fire that leaped everywhere, the fire and the film of smoke that seemed to almost mask it, more than I will the cries and shouts of those poor men, struggling, shouting, trapped—coughing and dying from the choking poison gases and the withering blast of heat.

Ensign Is Calm

"An officer or two were shouting orders—Ensign McCrea, head of our bunch from the New Mexico, I remember most. He seemed calmest of any. Everyone, it seemed, was mad, but McCrea seemed to be thinking and giving orders as if this were a drill, a speed drill.

"Even the heavy steel plates turned white hot in an instant. The gas was terrible. It choked and gagged me, burned my throat, puffed out my eyes so that I could hardly see. The whole turret was one big ball of flame. The smoke seemed as hot as the blaze.

"I had been in the gun pit, my eyes glued to the telescope in the pointer's station, directly below the recoil cylinder of the starboard gun, the one that flared back. When I got out of the gun pit to the level of the gun platform, the other boys, those that were not already killed, were falling all over themselves in heaps at the hatchway ladders.

"It was terrible. The gas seemed to get them as soon as they got off the floor and they began pitching forward and falling.

"I saw McCrea's white, horror stricken face. But he seemed very calm, standing there in the controlling room, the telephone receiver clamped on his head, shouting to those on the ship outside and yelling orders at us.

"I felt trapped. McCrea saw me and shouted to me to go down below.

"'Don't try to get out the upper hatches,' he told me.

Crawls to Safety

"That saved my life—if I had gone to the upper hatchways with the rest, I wouldn't be here now. That saved Caviezel and Etcherson, too. I crawled down, through manholes, down and down, it seemed, with the flames following me, plunging and falling until I stumbled on Caviezel and Etcherson in the handling room.

"The three of us made our way to the bottom deck and finally got out before the magazine was battened shut and flooded."

CHICAGO, June 13.—Rents for American homes have gone up 85 per cent on an average for the country in the last ten years, W. R. Shirley, president of the National Fraternal Congress, told a welfare conference of fraternal orders held here.

"Wage earners in forty-six cities are required to pay from 100 to 150 per cent more rent than in 1914," said Mr. Shirley. "There are sixty-seven cities in which the rent increases have soared above the 85 per cent average. The increase in the last year has been nearly 10 per cent.

CONVICT LABOR PLAN SUCCESS

Prisoners Construct Good Roads at Considerable Saving to State

SACRAMENTO, June 13.—After serving ten months in the dual capacity of employes and prisoners of the state, California's convict road workers have proved that the new law which permits them to build highways and earn wages redounds to the benefit of both the state and its prisoners.

For the period from August 17, when the new pay law went into effect, to May 1, the prison road workers made net earnings of $29,610, after the cost of food, clothing and operation of the camps had been deducted, according to a report made public today by Ben Milliken, state superintendent of prison road camps.

The daily average earning for the entire period is 29 cents per man per day, Milliken's report shows, but for last month this earning jumped to 42 cents per day. The highway board is authorized to pay $2.50 per day, but from this sum expenses of the camps must be deducted. The present wage paid is $2.10, the average cost of maintaining free labor camps.

Earnings of some of the men have reached the maximum saving allowed—75 cents.

Build Good Roads

Approximately 600 men are employed in the three convict road camps. Milliken said, and the reports indicate that the prison laborers build roads equally as good as those constructed by free men. There is less interruption of work, due to the fact that the civilian workers changed jobs frequently while the convicts stay on the job until it is completed.

"The successful use of convict labor in the construction of mountain highways in California, under the new pay law passed by the last legislature, is attracting nation-wide interest," declared State Highway Engineer R. M. Morton, commenting upon Milliken's report.

Could Employ More

"If we had the money available for construction work in these remote sections, there is no reason why we could not use 1,500 men from the prisons on the state highways, relieving congestion in the penitentiaries.

"Extension of this work, however, is a problem which must go hand in hand with the solution of the refinancing of state highway construction. Men from the prisons are employed in remote sections on primary construction and funds for work of this acteracter are about exhausted."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLINKIE BUG

Uncle Wiggily was just hopping away from his hollow stump bungalow one morning to go adventuring when a little rabbit girl came skipping up the front walk.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" she gaily called to him. "I've come to visit you and stay a while, and if you'll just wait until I put my night dress and tooth brush on the front porch, I'll come adventuring with you."

"Oh, you will, Baby Bunty, will you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, with a slow twinkling of his pink nose. For, at a glance, he had seen that the little rabbit girl was Baby Bunty. Having no home of her own, she used to live around at the different houses in Woodland.

"Yes, I'll come adventuring with you," laughed Baby Bunty, and quickly she tossed her little bundle, in which were her night dress and her toothbrush up on the porch. Baby Bunty never took much baggage with her when she visited around. It did not take her long to pack and go from one place to the next.

Every one loved Baby Bunty, but she was a queer little rabbit, always getting into mischief and making trouble, though she didn't intend to. That's why Uncle Wiggily didn't much care to have her come adventuring with him.

"Hadn't you better stay home here and help Nurse Jane in the bungalow?" said Uncle Wiggily, casual like.

"No, I want to come with you," said Baby Bunty with a smile.

"Yes, take her along, Wiggy!" called Nurse Jane from the kitchen window. "I don't need her here to help me."

"Hello, Nurse Jane!" called the little rabbit girl, waving her paw. "I'm fine this morning, how are you? I'm going adventuring, adventuring, adventuring! I'm going adventuring, with Uncle Wiggily Longears!" she sang.

"Well, I guess there's no hope for it," sighed the rabbit gentleman. "I'll have to take her. Come along, Baby Bunty," he called.

They set off together, but they had not gone very far before Bunty's hair ribbon came off, and Uncle Wiggily had to stop and fasten it on. Then the lace of her shoe came loose, and Mr. Longears had to tie that. After a while Baby Bunty tore her dress on a thorn bush, and the rabbit gentleman had to paste the cloth together with sticky gum from the pine tree.

"We're having lots of fun, aren't we, Uncle Wiggily!" asked Baby Bunty, smiling at him.

"Um! Maybe," said the rabbit uncle. They went on a little farther and Baby Bunty suddenly cried:

"Oh, I'm tired, Uncle Wiggily. I guess you'll have to carry me!"

"This settles it!" cried Mr. Longears. "There is no use looking for an adventure today. I'll go back to the bungalow!" And back he went, carrying Baby Bunty.

"Oh, I'm having a lovely time!" she murmured as she nestled in Uncle Wiggily's paws. The rabbit gentleman didn't say anything, but still he loved Baby Bunty.

"Well, did you have a nice time?" asked Nurse Jane when they reached the bungalow just as it was getting dark, for they had been gone all day.

"I had a lovely time," said Betty. But still Uncle Wiggily didn't say anything, but he twinkled his pink nose.

After supper, when it was almost time to go to bed and while Uncle Wiggily, Nurse Jane and Baby Bunty were sitting out on the porch all of a sudden Bunty cried:

"I want a Blinkie Bug!"

"A what?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"A Blinkie Bug!" said Bunty. "I want a Blinkie Bug!"

"She means a lightning bug," exclaimed Nurse Jane, for the fireflies were flickering about in the dark. "Catch her a lightning bug and put it in a bottle or she'll cry and keep us awake," said the muskrat lady.

"So Uncle Wiggily caught a "Blinkie Bug," as Baby Bunty called it and gently put it in a bottle for her. Baby Bunty took it up to bed with her, and the lightning bug flickered with a pale light in her room.

"It's awful pretty," said Baby Bunty. "I like a Blinkie Bug."

Now in the middle of the night there was a noise down stairs in the bungalow. Nurse Jane heard it and awakened Uncle Wiggily.

"I think it's the Burglar Fox!" she whispered.

Uncle Wiggily tried to turn on the electric light in the bath, but it wouldn't shine. It was broken. He couldn't find a match to light the gas and it was all dark. And the noise down stairs grew louder so that it awakened Baby Bunty.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" she called, "take my Blinkie Bug light and see who's trying to get in!"

So the bunny took the lightning bug bottle lantern and went down stairs. The Blinkie Bug gave a good light, and as Uncle Wiggily held it up so it would shine in the kitchen, all of a sudden the Burglar Fox, for he it was, jumped out of the window. He was afraid to stay when he saw the light, for, being a bad chap, he wanted to slip in while it was dark to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears.

But Bunty's Blinkie Bug made the Fox run away, and Nurse Jane said it was a good thing the little rabbit girl had wanted a firefly to take with her to bed.

So it all happened for the best, and if the egg beater doesn't sprinkle talcum powder on the chocolate candy to make it look like a marshmallow cream, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the bark basket.

"I want to come with you," said Baby Bunty.

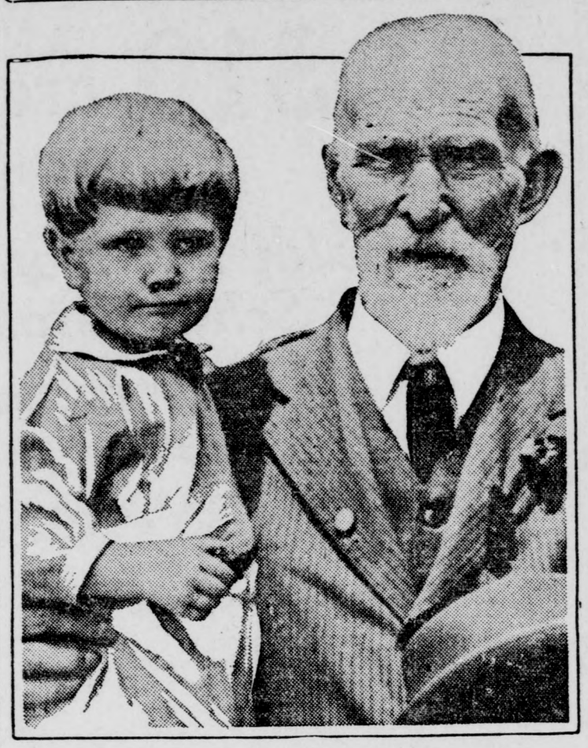
Grieving Tot Is Happy

DANNY YARBROUGH, mourning the death of his grandfather, refused to be comforted until his parents "borrowed" W. H. OZBURN to take the place of his real grandpa. Now he's happy again.



ATLANTA, Ga., June 13.—Wee Danny Yarbrough is happy again.

Danny, who is 3, couldn't sleep or eat for a while, he was so grieved over the death of his very best friend and pal, his grandfather, who died at the age of 70.

But he feels better now, because his parents went to the Confederate Soldiers' home and induced W. H. Ozburn, close friend of Danny's grandpa, to substitute.

Danny was delighted, and now "Grandpa" Ozburn makes a visit every week to the Yarbrough home.

From Book Of Life

THE MAKINGS OF GREATNESS

Some achieve greatness, some have greatness thrust upon them, as Shapespeare observed. It is not true that all great men and women are so because of certain qualities born in them: many of them are great because of the very lack of those qualities at birth.

The meaning of this is explained by Harvey O'Higgins in his new book, "The American Mind in Action," in an examination of Mark Twain which throws light on some of those qualities of the American mind for which he was most noted and most esteemed.

"He was born a seven-month child, 'a puny baby with a wavering promise of life,' according to Albert Bigelow Paine's official biography; and to the new psychology, this fact is of prime importance.

"A premature birth makes the struggle for survival hard on the vital organs of the infant, and he begins life in timidity.

"He has, of course, no intelligence, no conscious mind whatever; but he has the unconscious animal mind which is to remain with him throughout his life.

"In this mind, physical inferiority will induce a mute recognition of inadequacy and insecurity; and if the feeling is not carefully nursed out of him by the affectionate protection and encouragement of his parents, it will continue as a basic strain of unconscious fearfulness that will plague him as long as he lives.

"It has been found that such a hidden feeling of inferiority is at the bottom of most of the vagaries of what we call 'artistic tempermament.' It is the mainspring of much intellectual achievement and the origin of a great deal of erratic genius.

"The ego of the child desires to dominate. If he is physically a weakling, he will try to win by other than physical means; that is to say, he will use his wits.

"The inferior child, timid and fearful, will become as alert as a wild animal in the woods. He will be sensitive, affectible, responsible, precocious, foxy. He will develop his intelligence, his faculties of protection, his sympathetic imagination.

"He may make a great success of his life, consequently. But, no matter what success he achieves, his pride in himself will always be insecurely supported on the shaking foundation of an unconscious sense of inferiority."

That, says O'Higgins, was true of Mark Twain.

Horace, in his Epistles, declared "That man scorches with his brightness, who overpowers inferior capacities, yet he shall be revered when dead."

June originally had twenty-six days.

Daily News Letter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad

By GERALD MILLER,
For International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Radio has revolutionized the process of public speaking, Wheeler McMillen, associate editor of Farm and Fireside, widely know through his numerous radio lectures, said recently.

"The mere wording of a sentence or a phrase decides the success or failure of a radio speaker," McMillen declared.

"The resonant quality of the voice plays a big part through the microphone," he continued, "but resonance is only half of the secret of effective broadcasting. Some voices, gifted with clear, sharp, vibrating qualities, capable of carrying to every corner of a lecture hall, are changed by the microphone to a series of incoherent blurs. Radio is also dependent upon the right choice of words in making up a sentence.

"I am convinced that the man whose voice is lacking in radio quality can make up for it by presenting a carefully constructed speech, and the result will be at least a 50 per cent improvement over ordinary efforts. Short sentences made up of simple words are the most effective. If long sentences are used, make them compound. A compound sentence is better for radio purposes than a complex one. The beginning and ending of paragraphs should be made up of short, pithy sentences packed with thought.

"A monosyllable with a long vowel is harder to pronounce sharply than a syllable with a short vowel.

"Listeners-in cannot see the periods by radio; the speaker must make them evident. This can be done if words are chosen for the ending and the beginning of sentences that are sharply defined. Words are clearest and most easily pronounced that end in sharp consonants, such as 'p' in handicap, 'k' in overlook and 't' in pursuit.

"Toil is a better word than work for radio use. The 't' is sharp as well as the diphthong. In the phrase 'through legislative or economic channels,' 'routes' would have been a better word than 'channels.' The phrase 'hangs back' is stronger than the word 'delays.' 'Put' is a better word than place; 'start' is clearer than 'began.'

"The opening sentence should strike the keynote of the speech and at the same time give a hint of suspended interest that will keep the listeners at the phones."

The film version of Harold Bell Wright's popular novel, "When a Man's a Man" shows at the United Theatre, Eagle Rock, today and Saturday, at popular prices. This is a picture that hundreds of thousands who have read the book will see. And in addition millions who never read the thrilling story will see the photoplay version.

Few writers have held as large an audience so long as has Harold Bell Wright, who started his career as a minister of the gospel, abandoning the pulpit for the larger field of the printed page. While his books do not preach, the characters exude a wholesome outlook toward life that is more potent than sermons.

"When a Man's a Man" tells of an heroic struggle to make good, against great odds, and of final triumph over certain minor defects of personal character and the more formidable elements of nature in a new land.

THE GLENDALE

Jack Hoxie in "The Man from Wyoming" is the feature picture at the Glendale Theatre today. In addition, five acts of vaudeville are on the boards.

THE GATEWAY

Cecil B. DeMille's "Triumph" continues at the Gateway Theatre.

THE T. D. & L.

"Boy of Mine" continues at the T. D. & L. Theatre.

AT WORK ON 'FEMALE'

Betty Compson, who recently signed a long term contract as a star and featured player in Paramount Pictures, returned to Hollywood from Miami, Fla., and will start work immediately in the starring role of "The Female."

The story is an adaptation by Agnes Christine Johnston of Cynthia Stockley's tale of South Africa, "Dalla, the Lions Cub." The screen play will be a Sam Wood production and a partial selection of the cast includes such well known players as Dorothy Cumming, Cyril Chadwick and Edgar Norton.

HOLLYWOOD THE SECOND

Yorktown, historic Virginia hamlet of Revolutionary war fame, nestled on the James river, is aroused. Its few hundred inhabitants, who hitherto have counted the passage of time by the two great events of its career—its place in revolutionary history and the establishment of a submarine base nearby during the late war—have been fired with ambition by what they consider the third outstanding event of history—the filming there by D. W. Griffith of scenes for "America," the latest big Griffith romance. Now Yorktown wants to become a second Hollywood.

NOW 'SINGLE WIVES'

A most imposing array of screen talent has been assembled for parts in "Single Wives," a modern society drama from the pen of Earl Hudson, which is about to go into production at the First National studios as a co-featuring vehicle for Corinne Griffith and Milton Sills.

The latest addition to the cast include, Lou Tellegen, Henry B. Walthal, Kathlyn Williams, Phillips Smalley, Phyllis Haver, John Patrick and Jere Austin.

FOR HALL OF FAME

H. H. Van Loan, one of the best known film writers, nominates for the motion picture hall of fame the following ten celluloid celebrities:

C. Francis Jenkins, inventor, honored for creating the method of projecting motion pictures.

D. W. Griffith, director for his many outstanding successes.

Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Film corporation, for bringing "independence" to the rector, for histrionic art.

C. Gardner Sullivan, screen playwright, for his screen stories.

Mary Pickford, actress, for phenomenal popularity.

Dr. C. A. Wilatt, inventor, for great advances in color photography made through his work.

Roy Leighton Manker, president Palmer Institute of Authorship, for founding the first and most important educational institution carrying screen technique to the people.

Wilfred Buckland, Famous Players-Lasky art director, for work in developing and perfecting technical art in films.

CONFESSIONS OF A BABY
Little Frogs

When I think of the expertness with which I use my hands and arms now, at seven months of age, in grasping my toys, holding out my hands to be taken, engineering my toes to my mouth and so on, I realize that those purposeless movements which I used to make when I was young, were really of use in developing me until I could put some purpose and meaning behind them.

Those queer little movements we babies make for some time after we are first born, that do not seem to have any relation with outside affairs at all, are called impulsive movements, or spontaneous movements, by scholars who study us. Sometimes these little aimless movements are not so aimless. I can remember on more than one occasion when I aimed at my eye and got there! And I hurt myself, too.

One scholar, a Dr. Mumford, has called attention to the fact that these movements of our arms and legs have quite a striking resemblance to the swimming movements of amphibians. You know what amphibians are—animals like frogs, salamanders, and so on, that have double life, both on land and water) and that they are one of the survivals from our ancestors who used to live in the waters. You know biologists believe that in the course of our evolution, we did pass through a stage when we lived in water. I shouldn't wonder—I sure do love the water. I'm never happier than when I am in my bathtub. Other scholars believe that these little movements of ours are simply due to the rapid growth of our nerve centers, with an overflow of nervous force to the muscles.

I have told you about our not seeing and not hearing at first. Did I tell you the reason why we can't hear for several hours to several days after birth? It is largely because the middle parts of our ears are always stopped up with a tough mucous so that the eardrums cannot vibrate. This is only gradually emptied by our swallowing and breathing and then the air gets in. Then, of course, there are imperfect nerve connections with the brain, so that perhaps for some time sounds are not distinguished, but sort of blurred, just as our sight is. We will jump at loud sounds, and some have thought that perhaps it is as much the jar caused by the sound as it is the sound itself, especially at first. We are not so sensitive to sounds after babyhood. We like large, noble sounds. That's why we are so noisy.

Our taste and smell seem to be rather dormant for quite a while. We show such decided contentment with our milk simply because it satisfies our hunger. However, certain tests that physicians have made with quite new born babies show that the taste is there in a slight degree. For instance, do you know that if we are given a taste of something sweet, we show that we like it, and if wee drops of a bitter, like quinine, are put on our tongue, we make up a face? It used to be thought that facial expressions showing likes and dislikes came by imitation, but when we show them so early, before we know how to imitate, it shows that the simple expressions, at least, are inherited.

Let me tell you something right here, on the question of expressions, while it does not really have anything in particular to do with babies: Darwin has pointed out that our expressions are generally the same as those which our animal ancestors possessed; and the fact that when we are in great anger, we display our teeth, even though we do not ordinarily bite, is probably a remnant from our animal ancestors who used to show their teeth as a preliminary to biting!

About our sense of smell, physicians have found that sometimes, when we are very young babies, we will show that we dislike strong and disagreeable odors. However, the experiments show that very strong tests were necessary to call our sense of taste and smell into action, so that they are not at all strongly developed.

I'll talk more about us soon. Au Revoir, Mama dears.

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

DECEIVES PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in my teens and very much in love with a boy six years older than myself. My folks do not allow me to go with any one although I slip out and go with this fellow. He wants to go places every night, which would be impossible for me. When I don't go with him every night he says I am out with some one else. I had a date one night with him and he called in the afternoon and said as it was his sister's birthday he had to take her out in the evening. It did not make me angry because I had broken dates with him. Then he made another date with me to take me to a dance, and again he said he had to take his sister. Shall I give him up and go with some one else? It would hurt me very much to see him with another girl. I do not allow him to kiss me although my girl friends' fellows always kiss them. They think I am foolish. Would it make him like me better? Is it wrong for me to go with this fellow when my folks know nothing about it? I am old enough to take care of myself. My younger sister goes every night and comes home any time and they don't say anything to her. She is not quite eighteen. She acts very nice around home but is wild when she goes out.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

I cannot understand why your parents are so strict with you and so lenient with your younger sister. Perhaps you did something when you were younger which made them doubt you. I do not think it is right that you should go with a boy secretly. At your age it would seem you ought to be allowed to have boy friends. Disobey your parents openly, since you want to go with boys, but do not deceive them. After they see you are determined, they will probably let you have your own way.

UGLY DUCKLING: To tease is a vicious form of cruelty and your family is very wrong in hurting you. Probably your mother does not realize that she is being cruel and merely thinks it fun to see you get "touchy" from what she says. Naturally when your sister and brother see what she does, they imitate. Tell your mother some time when you are alone together that it nearly breaks your heart to be called what they call you, and probably when she realizes how you suffer she will stop bothering you and will also see that the others do. Your letter is not silly. I understand completely how miserable your life is made by that one word. Of course it is foolish to let such a thing bother you, but you just can't help it.

DOUBTFUL: The girl probably feels self-conscious when you are around and is waiting for you to say something further to her. If you like her, talk to her as the other boys do and ask permission to call or take her somewhere. Unless she refuses you, you have no reason to think that she has tired of you.

BLUE EYES: Certainly forget the young man and go with others. Although your love for him seems very deep right now, you are young and time will wipe out the hurt you feel and you will learn to care for some one else even more deeply.

In response to a recent request from a reader for Chocolate Doughnuts, two Reader Friends have kindly sent me the following recipes:

"Mrs. C. M." and "Mabel" sent identical recipes: "Chocolate Doughnuts with Eggs: Two eggs, one tablespoon of melted butter, one cup of sweet milk, three-fourths of a cup of granulated sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of melted chocolate, three cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of vanilla. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat the eggs and add the sugar to them, then also add the chocolate, butter, milk and vanilla. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients, which will make a medium-thick dough. Roll out about one-half inch thick and cut with a doughnut cutter. Fry in deep, hot fat as any doughnuts. When cool sprinkle with powdered sugar. This recipe makes three dozen doughnuts."

"Mrs. C. M." also sent the following: "Chocolate Doughnuts without Eggs: Two tablespoons of butter melted, two-thirds of a cup of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of nutmeg, one-half teaspoon of vanilla, two and one-half ounces (or squares) of unsweetened chocolate melted, one cup of sweet milk, three cups of flour and three teaspoons of baking powder. Mix butter and sugar together, then add the salt, nutmeg, vanilla, and melted chocolate (cooled). Also add the milk and the flour sifted with the baking powder. Mix well and roll out on a slightly-floured bread board, about one-fourth inch thick. Cut with a doughnut cutter and fry to a light brown in deep fat which is hot enough to brown a small piece of bread in 60 seconds. Drain well and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

"Or, better yet, sugar the doughnuts as follows: Put six doughnuts into a large paper bag with a couple of tablespoons of powdered sugar; close top of bag and then shake well. When the doughnuts are well coated with the sugar, remove them and put six more into the bag, shaking as before and adding more powdered sugar as necessary. Save left-over sugar for next baking. This method will save lots of trouble and leaves no sugar-dust to clean up afterwards."

I want to thank these kind Reader Friends for sending us their recipes, which I am sure many housekeepers will use and value.

Beauty Chats

By EDNA KENT FORBES

SCALP STIMULATION

A great scalp specialist once told me that at least nine out of ten ordinary hair troubles could be avoided if the scalp were properly stimulated. We do not treat our hair as nature intended it to be treated, that is keeping it clean and letting it hang free. If we are women we wave it artificially, do it up in knots, worry it with hairpins and hatpins, and wear heavy hats. If we are men we have it washed too often and stop the proper circulation of blood to the scalp by wearing heating, stiff-brimmed hats. Also if we are just ordinary mortals we neglect the danger signals of dandruff and falling hair until it is almost too late.

The scalp should be given a thorough, vigorous massage every day. If you are a woman the best time is at night when you free your hair from pins and hats, and when the scalp is literally dead tired. The massage starts the blood running again, sending nourishment to the roots of the hair, supplying hair and scalp with life-giving tissue. It keeps the skin flexible, which otherwise has a tendency to draw itself tightly over the skull, so that a layer of fat may form underneath. It stimulates all the pores so they will throw off waste matter and it does, generally, more good than I can tell you in so short a space.

It is becoming the fashion in beauty shops to sneer at that great invention, the electric vibrator. I have always found, since I make it my duty to visit as many shops as possible to investigate their methods, that where they advocate hand massage rather than the electric machine, the prices are very much higher. Personally, I think one vibrator as good and much less fatiguing for the person doing the treating. If you haven't one at home and can afford one, by all means get one.

The pilocarpine hair tonic is: Pilocarpine Hydrochlorate, 2 grains; Precipitated Sulphur, 30 grains; Creosole (Lilly), 30 drops; Castor Oil, 10 drops; Alcohol (95 per cent), 4 ounces; Tr. Cantharides, 4 drams; Cologne, 4 drams; Rose Water, to make 8 ounces.

M. W. R.:—Soft kid curlers are better for your hair than a heated iron, as the latter dries out the natural oil making hair brittle and apt to break off.

At this season of the year it is an easy matter to improve the skin through the diet, for there are all the green and fresh vegetables—the salads that can be made from either fruit or such greens as dandelion—spinach, and any number of other vegetables in the market just now. If you eat less meat and more of these vegetables your skin will not be sallow, and your system will lose its present sluggish feeling.

Massage the Scalp Vigorously Every Few Days

Women of Today

sand and is organized in forty-six states of the United States. Its work is being introduced and branches formed in Mexico, Alaska, Hawaii, Honolulu, Latvia, France, Australia and New Zealand.

The aim of the organization is to promote co-operation between the parents and teachers of the children to their mutual advantage. The twenty-eighth annual convention was held recently in St. Paul, Minn.

In Buffalo where the National League of Women Voters held its annual convention recently, Miss Elizabeth Hauser, secretary of the league, said in answer to charges that women are neglecting to vote:

"Women in politics are still in the feather duster stage. While the feather duster brushes off a little surface grit, sometimes it throws enough dust into the eyes of its manipulator to blind her to the grime beneath. The political housekeeping has been done for so many years by father that it is manifestly unfair to expect miraculous performances from mother directly after she has been admitted to a kind of left-handed participation in it."

The officers elected by the League of Women Voters at its recent convention in Buffalo were: Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, president; Miss Julia Lathrop, Chicago, first vice president; Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham of Texas, second vice president; Miss Ruth Morgan of New York, third vice president; Miss Elizabeth Hauser of Girard, Ohio, secretary, and Miss Katherine Ludington, Lyme, Conn., treasurer. The three last were re-elected.

WEDDING UNITES POPULAR COUPLE

Dora Wainwright Is Bride Of Wilbur Perkins at Home Ceremony

Miss Dora Wainwright, daughter of Wesley T. Wainwright of 372 West Doran street, and Wilbur Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Perkins of 312 East Harvard street, were united in marriage Tuesday night, June 10, 1924, at the bride's home before a company of thirty relatives and friends. Rev. H. I. Rasmus, Jr., assistant pastor of the First Methodist church, was the officiant.

The Wainwright home had been transformed into a bower of spring loveliness. Cecil Brunner roses, and ferns were used in profusion and two large vases of roses placed at the side of a bank of greenery and white flowers formed the setting for the bridal party.

Special Music

Just preceding the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Major and son Karl played "Still as the Night." W. J. Meyers sang "At Dawning," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Major and the Major trio played "I Love You Truly." They also played the Lohengrin Wedding march for the entrance of the bridal party. During the reading of the marriage service Karl Major played very softly "O Promise."

Miss Wainwright was attended as maid of honor by Miss Julia hull. She wore a pink taffeta frock trimmed in gold lace. She carried an arm bouquet of pink sweetpeas and fern.

Miss Wainwright presented a pleasing picture as she entered with her father, Wesley T. Wainwright, who gave her in marriage. She wore a bridal gown of white crepe de chine trimmed in white satin. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, white bride's roses and fern.

Mr. Perkins was attended by Gould H. Warren as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Wainwright home with Mrs. G. H. Brown, a sister of the bride, as hostess. At this time the wedding cake was served with the other refreshments.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Perkins left by motor for a two weeks' tour to Yosemite National park and other points north.

Mrs. Perkins has been a resident of Glendale for the past few years. She is an active member of the First Methodist church and member of the choir. Mrs. Perkins has been employed by the Biola Press of Los Angeles.

Mr. Perkins is employed by the Standard Oil company at Camarillo. He has resided in Glendale with his parents for the past three years. He is also a member of the First Methodist church. They expect to make their home in Ventura.

Directors Discuss Date of Chest Drive

The directors of the Glendale Welfare Chest met yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the plans for holding the annual drive to raise funds for the various local charitable and welfare organizations, but no definite date was settled at the conference.

The drive that the Y. M. C. A. plans to hold in the third week in September will come close to the time originally set for the Welfare Chest campaign, which was planned for the first week in October, and it was the aim of the directors to seek some plan by which the two drives would be prevented from overlapping.

President W. E. Hewitt, who acted as chairman, will call another meeting of the directors next Tuesday, at which it is expected the date for the Welfare Chest campaign will be definitely settled.

Aims of Legion Form Optimist Lunch Topic

The aims and ideals of the American Legion were brought before the members of the Optimist club of Glendale by Eugene J. Wix, commander of District No. 32, at today's noon luncheon of the club, held in the Harriett Mae tea room on East Harvard street.

The meeting was presided over by President Dr. H. R. Boyer, who told of a "Red" demonstration in Vienna two years ago, while he was a tourist in Germany.

A telegram was read from Peter Hanson, delegate of the local chapter to the convention of Optimist International, now in session at Milwaukee, Wis., stating that over 400 delegates were present and that "the only thing lacking is sunshine."

The "Big Brother" committee of the local club will meet with the Girl Scouts' council at the Chamber of Commerce rooms tonight, on invitation of Mrs. W. C. Wichert, secretary.

THIRD GAME OF SERIES WON BY SAN FRANCISCO

Meyers Gets Wild In Ninth And Seals Shove Over Winning Runs

By BEN McGUIRE
For Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—The San Francisco Seals took the third game of the series with Los Angeles yesterday, 3 to 1, when Meyers weakened in the ninth and the Seals scored two runs on two doubles and a single. Guy Williams, young left hander, was on the mound for the Seals and was unsteady, yielding eight hits, but was saved on several occasions by lightning double plays and brilliant fielding by his teammates.

The Seals rapped Bim Meyers for eleven safeties. Los Angeles scored her only run in the third when Twombley hit a double to right and Hood followed with one to the score board. The Seals tied it up in the eighth when Mulligan walked, and was brought home when Waner hit to the score board for two bases.

TIGERS 4, OAKS 2

OAKLAND, June 13.—Lefty Thomas, hurler added to the Bengal force recently, held the Oaks to four scattered hits here yesterday, while his team mates were pounding Foster, and the Tigers won, 4 to 2. Only two of the Oakland players reached second during the game, and on each occasion these were brought in by timely singles.

Foster had the better of the pitching duel, fanning six men, while the best Lefty could do was to send one Oaklander back to the bench after taking three healthy swings at the ball. Thomas walked four and Foster gave free passes to five.

The game was fast and full of action throughout, the time consumed being only one hour and forty-five minutes.

SACRAMENTO, June 13.—By defeating the hard-hitting Salt Lake crew here yesterday, 3 to 2, the Solons went into fourth place. Canfield was effective during the seven innings he worked, giving way to Pick, pinch hitter, who came through with a triple that tied the score. Both teams played airtight ball.

PORTLAND, June 13.—High's single in the ninth enabled the Portlanders to cop yesterday's game from Seattle, 9 to 8. Poole gave the Beavers a 2-to-0 lead early in the game when he pounded out a home run. Welch and Lane followed with homers later, giving Seattle four scores. The Ducks got next to Gregg in the seventh inning, with the score 8 to 2 against them, and scored six runs before he was yanked. Due to a rose festival parade scheduled for the afternoon, the game was played in the morning.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

BOSTON, June 13.—In a ragged game marked by slugging and slight errors, the Cubs won from Boston yesterday, 9 to 5. It was the only game scheduled in the National league. Four Boston hurlers tried to check the Cubs without avail. The victory puts Boston within half a game of the top.

If you want a rule interpreted—

If you want to know anything about a play or player—

Write John B. Foster, the man who helped make the rules under which the game is played today. If you want a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed, envelope. Otherwise your question will be answered in this column.

QUESTION—If a very hard grounder hits me on my arm and the ball bounds up and I catch it when it falls and throw the batter out at first, am I given an error?

ANSWER—You are not.

QUESTION—If a player is put out on a foul fly does it lower his batting average?

ANSWER—It gives him a time at bat more and each time at bat helps to cut an average down.

QUESTION—If you bunt the ball on the third strike are you out? The umpire said a player had a perfect right to do it.

ANSWER—You may bunt the ball on the third strike if you wish to do so, but if you bunt foul you are out on strikes.

QUESTION—In an amateur game can a pitcher wind up and deliver the ball with one foot on the rubber and the other foot behind it or must both feet be on the rubber?

ANSWER—Neither foot ever must be behind the rubber when the ball is delivered to the batter. One foot may be in advance of the plate but one foot must touch the plate in the act of delivery.

QUESTION—If a runner is on third base and the batter hits a foul fly to left field which is caught, can the man on third run home?

ANSWER—Yes—after the ball is caught.

QUESTION—Did Merkle make his not-touching second base play in a world series game or a National league game? Was it a bonehead play? In what year was it made?

ANSWER—The play was made in a National league game between New York and Chicago in 1908 and it was not a bonehead play. For years players had been in the habit of running from the field the moment the winning run crossed the plate. That was all that Merkle did. Technically he could have been forced out for not touching second. There was absolutely no reason why he should touch second, as the winning run had scored on clean hit by which the batter could not be thrown out at first. Chicago protested and was upheld without any consideration as to the play from the merits of sportsmanship and the actual completion of a run.

QUESTION—If there are two strikes on the batter and the next pitched ball hits the bat accidentally and rolls fair, is it supposed to be a foul or fair hit?

ANSWER—It is a fair hit. The fact that the bat and ball met accidentally does not take away the responsibility of the batter.

QUESTION—Two hands are out. Runner is on second. Batter singles to the outfield and is run down trying to make second. Runner who was on second scores before the third out is made. Does the run count?

ANSWER—The run counts, and the batter gets a single.

TIED FOR LEAD

The Red Sox kept in the tie for first place by winning from Cleveland, 4 to 3.

Thurston won his ninth game of the season for Chicago. The Athletics were the victims, 5 to 3.

Carlocks Beat Radio Gassers In Fast Game

The Carlocks turned back the Radio Gassers, leaders in the pin loop, last night at the Recreation alleys, by winning two of the three games played. Covell of the winners got high score in the last game when he counted 232. Dawson, also of the Carlocks, rolled 214 in the first game and 213 in the last game.

FOR GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY.
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 12.—One of the most interesting developments of the Olympic trials now in progress in this section, is the fact that affairs relating to track and field ar being left to the men who really know something about them—the coaches. This is unprecedented. Also it is important. It means a great deal, so far as our prestige in world athletics is concerned.

When Loren Murchison, the great sprinter, showed signs of suffering from recent overwork, Lawson Robertson, the head coach, withdrew him from the final heats. Robertson knew what Murchison could do and it wasn't necessary to kill the man in order to get a new demonstration.

Cord Taylor, at the Yankee Stadium, failed even to qualify in his specialty but Robertson who well knows the things of which this athlete will be capable when he is right, picked him to go on to the finals at Cambridge next Friday and Saturday despite his poor showing in the preliminaries.

Nothing that gives greater warrant for hope as regards the United States in the coming Olympics as well as future international meets, has, in the writer's opinion, ever happened.

Kaer to Be Offered Contract by Seals

Morton Kaer, sensational U. S. C. athlete, will be offered a contract with the San Francisco Seals when he graduates, Charley Graham, one of the Seals' owners, has announced. Kaer stands a good show to mix with the world's best athletes in Paris this summer. Should the contract be offered it will be the second time Kaer has been invited to join the professional ranks, as he was tendered a contract when he finished high school at Red Bluff, but decided to get a little higher education before going into the game in earnest.

PASS UP FRENCH SCORING SYSTEM

Methods Adopted by Tennis Body to Be Followed at Olympic Games

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Announcement that the French Olympic committee had altered the system of point scoring for the great games, a move regarded here as a studied attempt to harass, embarrass and otherwise short-change the United States in the final count, was tendered the hearty horse laugh in official circles today. Denial of the right of the French to set down, arbitrarily, a system for scoring points in the various events on the program was issued by Frederick W. Rubien, A. A. U. mouthpiece, and the entire business thrown overboard with a carefree gesture.

Rubien not only is secretary of the American Olympic committee, but is chairman of the rules committee of the International Amateur Athletic federation, which drew up the code to be followed during the impending Olympiad at its last meeting in Lausanne. It would appear, therefore, that, if Rubien does not know what he is talking about, cream cheese would make an excellent cornerstone.

The French system, according to the announcement, would award ten points instead of five for first place; five points for second place; four points for third, etc. Mr. Rubien denies that such a system will be official. In fact, he says, there will be no official point score at all.

Use Own Systems

"It was decided at the International Amateur Athletic federation meeting at Lausanne in 1921 that there would be no official point score in the track and field competition," Rubien said. "But there is nothing to prevent each nation from scoring points according to the system in vogue in their respective countries."

That being the case, American scorers may be expected to follow our national system of five points for first, four for second, etc., and from the outlook the American team will run strongly second, third and fourth. As a matter of fact, however, it is hardly probable that the French system will be used by any country, with the exception of France itself. This much has been indicated by a recent letter, written by J. S. Edstrom, president of the International Amateur Athletic federation, in reply to an inquiry of point scoring at the Olympics. A paragraph of the letter follows:

"The method of scoring that was used for the winter sports events at Chamonix, under the auspices of the French Olympic committee, was unofficial. There is no scoring at all at the Olympic games."

DOPE FROM DUGOUT

By JOHN B. FOSTER
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 12.—Strings of accepted infield chances are not being run up in the major leagues this year as profusely as they have been in past seasons. The record for the season to date is fourteen accepted chances in one game, and a newcomer — Wright of Pittsburgh — holds that.

The season started off as if the infielders were going to run riot. Grantham took his eight chances four days in a row, and pretty respectable strings were run up by other infielders. But they aren't doing it any more.

The reason is that batters are not hitting so many on the ground. More hits are going into the air. The outfielders cut the side down early and the batters do not have so many chances.

That brings up the point of improved pitching. It is shown most clearly in the American league, where there is a long list of pitchers who are doing better than average work. In the National, three or four pitchers are inclined to run out in front, and then comes a block of hurlers who are making both ends meet, followed by others who will not have any perceptible margin of games won when the season ends.

The record for infield chances accepted in one game was set at fifteen in 1923. Peckinpaugh made that record. Gerber and Fonseca both got fourteen in a game and so did Ivy Olson. There were quite a number of thirteens.

But this year only Gerber and Tierney have climbed as high as thirteen, while Wright stands alone with his fourteen.

Young Lee, the Boston American shortstop, has never quite got going because of an injury to his hand. Last year in the Western league he was the marvel of the minor league ground coverers. When he hits his stride for Boston, it is expected that he will put up a mark or two for some of the other shortstops to shoot at—provided, of course, the Boston pitchers get batted enough to give him chances. Just now the "no account" pitching staff of the Red Sox, as it was dubbed by some critics in the spring, seems to be about as good any any in the league.

Bill McKeechnie, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the most optimistic second division manager in the National league. Despite the inability of the Pirates to get going, Bill insists that his team will be in the thick of the pennant fight before the race is over.

OLYMPIC FINALS OPEN AT HARVARD

Paddock Ready to Compete With Nation's Fastest Runners Today

BOSTON, June 14.—Final trials or the American Olympic track and field team will begin a two days' seance at the Harvard stadium this afternoon, and by nightfall tomorrow success and failure will have lined up on opposite sides of the thin, invisible line that divides the great from the near-great. Only the great will become members of the 1924 Olympic team.

Heats and semi-finals will come down to a decision today, with the finals held in reserve for tomorrow. The fields, in the opinion of the writer, are the finest ever assembled within an American enclosure.

Look for Showers

The official forecast called for probable light showers, but, barring actual cold weather, records will appear to be in cor a careworn afternoon. Every athlete of immediate note throughout the country has been here for upward of twenty-four hours. One Charles Paddoc registered at a local hotel last night, however, and is said to be ready to run the legs off his field in the sprints.

He will have to do business with such as Loren Murchison, Jackson, Lovejoy, Alf Leconey, Evans of Iowa, and George Hill, intercollegiate champion, among others.

Paddock and Evans

It will be a case of Paddock and Evans, against the combined east, and it is said Charles may shade a few records. Western experts claim that his injured leg has healed, and that he is in splendid shape.

Reidpath's old record of 48 1-5 may fall in the 400-meter race, with Helffrich, intercollegiate champion; C. S. Cochran, the favorite; Eric Milson, the Iowan; Ascher, Taylor and Bohannon lined up. The 800-meter record is in similar danger. Here Ray Watson and Larry Brown, who beat 1:54 recently; Schuyler Enck, who bettered 1:53 last Saturday; Reese of Texas, Marster of Georgetown and "Soapy" Waters of Harvard, declared to be the best of the lot, will go to the post.

RAIN IS WINNER

Local K. C. Player To Join Club at Little Rock, Ark.

Another Glendale ball player has moved up a notch in the diamond field. This time it is H. Doll, who played shortstop for the local K. of C. team. Doll left last night to join the Little Rock, Ark., ball team. He is one of three brothers who helped the K. of C. team win the championship of Southern California. R. Doll is left fielder for the local Caseys, while M. Doll romps around first base.

Doll was recommended to Little Rock by Lefty Herman, of Glendale, who recently joined the Little Rock team. He is the first of the Glendale K. of C. team to join professional ranks. No doubt there will be others to follow, as there are a number of high class performers on this team.

SPORT WISDOM

By WALTER CAMP
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 12.—Track and field enthusiasts who journey up to Harvard stadium next Friday and Saturday will see, in the writer's opinion, the greatest competitions of the sort that ever have been held. Both in regard to quality of performances and quantity of performers the final Olympic trials promise to be epochal.

It would be rash to attempt to pick the winners. There are too many entrants of equal, or nearly equal, accomplishments. It would be little more than a 50-50 proposition to attempt to forecast whether eastern athletes or western athletes will preponderate on the team that eventually will be selected to represent America at Paris.

But, given good weather, it is easy to predict that the coming Olympic trials will be the greatest event any country has ever seen. Records undoubtedly will fall. Practically every event will be contested by men who have equaled, or give promising of equaling, the best records the world's athletes have yet been able to establish. After this, even the Olympics themselves must seem a sort of anti-climax to Americans.

A British physician has just taken a crack at food "faddists." He says that the very foundation of healthy eating is the natural taste of the individual. Many of the forbidden things, if eaten only when craved, cause no trouble, he declares, while trouble frequently follows the use of "scientific" diets. He also emphasizes the fact that the ability to eat certain foods changes from year to year.

HOPPE NEARS TOP IN LEGION MEET

Glendale Scrapper to Meet Frankie Burns Tonight At Hollywood

This time tomorrow, and probably much sooner, in fact, Dick Hoppe, classy Glendale boxer, will know if he is going to continue in the American Legion tournament, or if he will halt by the wayside, for Hoppe takes on Frankie Burns of Oakland at Hollywood tonight. There will be no draw decision, as the contest is an elimination event and someone must win.

Burns will go in fighting from the first gong, for he claims a clean record of wins since his advent in the fighting game five years ago. A victory for Hoppe will be practically the same as topnotch in the elimination contest, as Burns is his toughest opponent left to dispose of.

Bobby Corbett, young Colorado boxer, and Marty Cross will tangle in the semi-final. The hardy mountaineer is confident he will send Leach's brother the same way he sent Marcus, Maurice and Soules since the meet started.

Other bouts on tonight's card are: Tommy Carter and Johnny Carlson; Joe Medina and Young Farrell at 122 pounds; Sammy Green and Rusty Russell at 133 pounds; Scotty Diest and Roy Moore at 145 pounds; Young Nino and Sailor Toomey.

CHARGE POLICE BEAT TEACHERS IN FRANKS CASE

One Instructor Threatens Damage Suits; Tried to Force Confessions

By OWEN L. SCOTT

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

CHICAGO, June 13.—The gentle art of wringing "confessions" from suspects, long known as the "third degree," has been developed to such a high point by the Chicago police in their "gold fish room" efforts to solve the murder of young Robert Franks that it has turned into a boomerang in their hands.

So vigorous were the police tactics that human welfare societies are threatening action, while friends of Walter Wilson, one of three instructors of the exclusive Harvard school, which the Franks boy attended, are planning criminal action against certain police officials as a result of their efforts to make Wilson "confess."

Meanwhile, it is being freely predicted that the confessions of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, the youthful "thrill slayers," will be blocked in court on the ground that they were not voluntary. Here, though, it is admitted the third degree was merely mental, and was fully justified by the results.

Held Seven Days

But Wilson and his two fellow instructors at Harvard school stand out as exhibits A., B. and C. of what is not justified in the way of third degree. These now forgotten figures in the Franks case had once made some remark that sounded as though it might be incrimination. As a result, they spent seven days in the "gold fish room" undergoing experiences which, they assert, make the tactics of the Russian Cheka appear humane.

The "gold fish room," be it known, derives its name from the fact that it is plentifully equipped with convenient little sections of rubber hose, which, wielded by a strong arm, inflict cruel punishment, yet leave no marks. The undulations of the hose, as it is brandished before the victim, reminded some imaginative policeman of the motions of a gold fish, hence the title, "gold fish room."

Whisked away from their homes without warning, with no word to their friends as to where they had been taken, the three instructors were taken to the "gold fish room." Not a chance for habeas corpus proceedings. No one knew where they were. All that was known came out in newspaper stories, apparently inspired, which announced that the prisoners were at the point of confessing the Franks murder.

What Wilson Charges

Here, in the words of Walter Wilson's lawyer, is what happened to Wilson in the "gold fish room." He was beaten with a rubber hose until it was torture for him even to breathe. Of course, during this time he was bound. Twice he was assaulted by a police lieutenant in person. Two policemen held the prisoner while the lieutenant knocked him down with his fist.

The point was to argue Mr. Wilson into confessing that he had kidnaped and killed Robert Franks. The prisoners got little or no sleep. During their inquisition the "gold fish" operators would tell them stories about the horrors of hanging. One of their favorite yarns was about how Carl Wanderer had gone to his death singing "Pal of Mine."

Seven days of this, so filled with horror for the victims that even King Philip of Spain must have turned in his grave in jealousy of this new inquisition—and then the three suspects were released and forgotten. Not a breath of suspicion attached to them, although incriminating stories had been blazoned before the public. No charge had been made against them.

Two Confess Crime

Such tactics have proved extremely successful in the past. They were so successful in one recent case that two sets of persons confessed the same murder—and more "gold fishing" had to be done to find out which confessors were telling the truth.

But the pretty little gold fish won't wiggle for future suspects if the three Harvard school instructors go successfully through with their plans to punish the fishermen.

COMEDY TO SHOW TWO MORE NIGHTS

Murphy's Comedians Stage 'East Is West' After 'The Unkissed Bride'

"The Unkissed Bride" continues to draw crowds to the big tent of Murphy's Comedians on Stocker street, Casa Verdugo, between Brand boulevard and Central avenue. This clever farce-comedy in three acts tells of what happens when a young man attempts to "fake" a marriage, in order to get a fortune from an uncle.

The marriage takes place, performed by a real minister, unbeknown either to bride or groom. They are in the apartment of the latter. The uncles comes, and likewise the aunt. They decide to stay over night—and then the fun begins. From this point on to the last curtain in Act 3 laughs are practically continuous.

"The Unkissed Bride" is obviously the sort of entertainment the public thoroughly enjoys. It will continue tonight and Saturday night, the management announces, the curtain rising at 8 o'clock. Starting Sunday, "East Is West," the great Fay Bainter hit, will be the Murphy attraction.

GUESTS ON STEAMER

SAN PEDRO, June 13.—Celebrating the city of Los Angeles' re-entering the Hawaiian service from this port the Past Presidents' and Directors' association of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce will be guests at a banquet served aboard the palatial liner June 20.

IDEAL PLAYGROUND

SAN PEDRO, June 13.—If Harbor Commissioner C. J. Golden has his way Cabrillo beach, the new playground for the harbor, will have no hot dogs nor frying onions. It will be an ideal playground for this community of 45,000, he avers, minus the Coney Island attractions which abound at every other beach.

SCARE IS GROUNDLESS

SAWTELLE, June 13. — Old soldiers reminded of the civil war, younger veterans in hospital suffer from shell shock.

Those are a few of many reports resulting from this week's mimic warfare by the Pacific battle fleet off San Clemente islands. Thousands of residents of southern California believed there was an earthquake—but there wasn't. Just the big guns booming. That's all.

AGED PASTOR ACTIVE

SANTA BARBARA, June 13.—Rev. William C. Pond, aged 94, who boasts of being the state's oldest minister, is a guest in this city on a survey of religious work for the Congregational denomination, with headquarters in San Francisco. It was 71 years ago that this elderly divine came around the Horn to bring the gospel to the miners in California camps and he has lived in the bay city for more than half a century.

DENTISTS TO CONVENE

SAN DIEGO, June 13.—If you must have the toothache, do take care that it doesn't occur on June 23 or 24 or 25 or 26 or 27 for most of the dentists in the state will be attending the annual convention of the Southern California Dental association here on those dates. There will be 1000 toothpullers here and all sorts of entertainment is provided to lure every last one of them.

TO COMBAT FIRES

RIVERSIDE, June 13.—County Fire Warden F. M. Baird visited Los Angeles yesterday to investigate the feasibility of adding portable radio sets to the county's fire-fighting equipment. He would like to establish stations at isolated lookouts such as Taquitz peak so that word of a fire could be flashed to the valley cities instanter. Great precautions must be taken this year in the Cleveland reserve, according to Forest Ranger H. I. Snyder of Corona.

BOOST NEW HIGHWAY

BLYTHE, June 13.—More than a score of boosters for the "Sunkist" trail returned today from Prescott, Ariz., where they attended a meeting Wednesday to encourage the building of a paved highway from Phoenix to Wickenburg to Blythe. It is the most-needed stretch of good road in the transcontinental highway system, they aver, after making the trip over Dick Wick Hall's hand-made road through Northern Yuma county. From Quartzite to Salome it is nothing else but—bumps. And from Wickenburg to Phoenix it is more of the same.

FISH ARE BITING

SAN BERNARDINO, June 13.—Ernie Shay, well-known sportsman, reports the best of fishing at Arrowhead lake right now. He has just returied from a most succesful trip and reports that all early tourist records have been broken at the San Bernardino mountain resorts.

TO TRICK SPEEDSTERS

SANTA ANA, June 13.—State motor speed officers are up to a new trick. And it is a highly succesesful method, they aver. Motorists in Orange county who attempt to overtake the motor car in which the officers are riding will find themselves "tried and convicted," as it were. The plan is simply this: A civilian driver in a touring car, with two officers in full uniform in the rear seat, will pace the highway traffic at 35 miles per hour. When a fast driver attempts to pass the decoy car, he will be teased beyond, far beyond, the legal limit. After a mile of joy he will be taken into custody. So watch your step—and the car ahead.

Eastern Business Man Heart Failure Victim

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—William Guggenheimer, Philadelphia, Pa., business man, aged 48, dropped dead from asserted heart failure at the Green Mill Gardens cafe near here while dining with his wife. The coroner's office announces an autopsy will be performed. The widow is at the Biltmore hotel.

Population of the United States will be nearly 200,000,000 at the end of this century, it is estimated.

CLEVELAND MEET IS FIRST BREAK IN G. O. P. HABITS

Wrench in Leaving Chicago Gives New Angle to Delegates' Views

By ROBERT T. SMALL

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright 1924.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 13.—Delegates and visitors to the Republican National Convention had just about become acclimated when the first session opened in the beautiful public hall down by the lake. This is the first G. O. P., conclave held away from Chicago in twenty long years. Chicago had become a sort of habit with the followers of Lincoln. They had decided to go there again this year when President Coolidge stepped in and said he preferred Lake Erie to Lake Michigan. So Lake Erie got the verdict by a handsome majority. It has been difficult to convince some of the visitors that there really is a lake down by the convention hall. For three days the weather was cloudy, smoky and murky and shy Lake Erie had been hiding herself behind the foggy veil.

It has been something of a wrench for the old timers to tear themselves away from the Windy City. They do not know yet just why Chicago was put on the administration blacklist but they have found Cleveland a delightful substitute and Cleveland has absorbed the convention without any outward signs of indigestion, political or otherwise. The convention has proved a great novelty here. The crowds have been nothing like as large as were expected but this has made the task of entertainment and accommodation all the more simple with the result that a pleasant time is being had by all—possibly with the exception of Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge Is Outside

Mr. Lodge has been trying to appear "regular" and trying to play the game, despite the manner in which he is being officially ignored by the fellow members of his own state delegation. Mr. Lodge moves in and out of the hotel lobbies, pushed and elbowed like any ordinary mortal. Four years ago he sat in the inner sanctum and only the chosen of the political gods could approach within speaking distance of the throne.

There was a report that the Massachusetts delegation was going to make Mr. Lodge a member of the convention committee designated to notify the vice presidential candidate of his nomination. This is the smallest 'plum' in the gift of the convention but even this in a final decision was withheld.

Senator Lodge's eyes still have a twinkle, however, and his beard still maintains its aristocratic permanent wave, even if the yellowjacket and the peacock feather are but fading memories.

Ideal Convention

Rush L. Holland, of Colorado, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, thinks this is an ideal convention.

"It is about time," he says, "that the people of the United States began to realize the importance of the office of vice president. That this convention should devote itself almost wholly to the vice presidency is a very fine thing. Too often in the past, a convention—and I am speaking of both Democrats and Republicans—has been just about ready to adjourn when someone remembers a candidate for vice president has not been named. The fact that so few mistakes have been made in the past is no argument for a continuance of the old system. The vice president field should be as thoroughly canvassed as the presidential pasture. This convention may have a fine influence on the future."

All sorts of merry quips have been made about the convention, so it was rather refreshing to hear the serious views of Mr. Holland.

Someone suggested that the Cleveland gathering should be known as the vice presidential convention of 1924 instead of the presidential.

On the other hand, someone else suggested that in the preparations for the convention there had been "too much presidency and not enough vice." And this "someone else" was a lady delegate, too.

Orator Practicing

Professor M. L. Burton, of Michigan, who is to have the honor of placing his old friend Calvin Coolidge in nomination for president of the United States, at today's session of the convention, is an orator of the first rank. Like every good orator, he wants to make the best impression upon his hearers. So for the past two days he has been over at the convention hall testing out his voice and its acoustics. He has been trying to find the range, as it were, and also has been practicing the modulations that will go best over the loud speakers hung above the speakers' stand, to say nothing of the twin microphones which are to carry his words broadcast to the far corners of the country. Professor Burton believes in preparedness.

Professor Burton is not without his supporters for the vice presidency. There are many who believe he would prove a strong candidate and his friendship for the president is such that their friends believe they would make a fine team to run the affairs of the country. It has been agreed that Dr. Burton's great chance would come if he should "set the delegates afire," with his speech nominating the president.

There have been so many admonitions to "keep Cool—and Coolidge" however, that maybe the delegates can't be kindled into flame.

Wears White Pants

It has not been difficult to "keep cool" in Cleveland. The weather has been most accommodating in that respect. One delegate, however, had the temerity to appear today in white flannel trousers. Under his serge coat, however, he wore a sweater.

A playful boom for the vice presidency was started today for C. C. Hamlin, of Colorado Springs. Mr. Hamlin is the new national committeeman from the Rocky Mountain state and is a great favorite with all the leaders of the G. O. P.

Mr. Hamlin "consented" to run after a consultation with Postmaster General Harry New. It came about in this way. Mr. Hamlin met New on the steps of the Federal Reserve bank building.

"Harry," he said, "who is your candidate for vice president today?"

"Clarence," replied Harry, "I don't see why it shouldn't be for you."

So with this nucleus of one vote, Mr. Hamlin proceeded to National headquarters. There he met Frank W. Mondell, an old friend from Wyoming, permanent chairman of the convention. He told Mr. Mondell of his boom.

"You can have my vote," said Mr. Mondell.

Which made two votes—more perhaps than some of the real aspirants will get.

Boom Collapses

But then the boom faded. It was discovered that Harry New has only half a vote from Indiana. That reduced the Hamlin strength to one and one half per cent which wasn't strong enough.

They are having a good deal of fun here over that Indiana situation. Most states have only seven delegates at large. Indiana has fourteen. Indiana is the greatest political state in the Union. Seven delegates wasn't half enough. Political expediency made it necessary to name fourteen with half a vote each. Now the problem is how to put the fourteen able bodied Hoosiers into the seven slim chairs set apart on the convention floor for them.

Walton, Harold Gasto, Paul Edmonds, Dr. John Anderson, of Glendale; H. O. Simmons, Thomas Ehrhardt, Rev. T. E. Stevenson, of Burbank.

Each one of the leaders will be located in a tent with seven boys. These tent units will be the basis for countless camp contests.

The camp includes ten acres, six miles from Avalon, on the landward side of the island. There are four baseball diamonds on the camp acreage.

Dollar Bill Display Proves Too Tempting

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—William De Forest went window shopping here. An attractive display of one-dollar bills in O. Fond's shirt shop proved too much of a temptation for him. He yielded to the impulse and sent a piece of iron crashing through the plate glass. Patrolman Schulz happened along just as William was cramming four crisp notes into his jeans and lodged the miscreant in the city jail on a burglary charge.

Ten circuses are touring this country.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP

By FAIR PLAY
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 12.—In going the full route with Harry Wills at the Queensboro A. C. on Monday night, Bartley Madden brought Tex Rickard's worst fears to realization.

Everybody was inclined to smile at Tex's caution in waiting until after this battle before hooking himself to Wills and Firpo for a half a million dollar battle. Now it is clear what a far-seeing guy Tex is.

Wills' immediate future depends upon whether or not Rickard thinks that the fans will dig down in their jeans for a whole lot of money to see him mingle with Firpo. At this writing Tex has not digested the situation.

The writer's dope, however, is that the battle will be held and that Firpo will get more money for his services than Wills.

Harry's showing should not be regarded as poor simply because he failed to knock out Madden. Others have failed to do this, notably Tommy Gibbons. The Irishman has a poor telegraph system from various parts of his body to his brain. Blows don't register on his mind the way they do on a more highly sensitized fighter. Thus while Madden will feel a blow locally, he does not get that sick feeling up in his brain and down his spine that induces a desire for sleep even with no bed present.

No, it wasn't so much that Wills did not stow Bartley away, but his manner of milling, that disappointed those who had come to see a deadly panther in action.

Instead, they saw a brown bear, a slow-footed, shuffling, pawing bruin who seemed to have forgotten how to hit. And don't overlook the fact that Wills did a lot of holding and hugging that was very bear-like.

He had to, in the tenth and eleventh rounds, for Madden, weighing 28 pounds less than his opponent and five inches shorter in stature, went into the big brown man like a fox terrier into a St. Bernard and basted the negro with every wallop known to pugilism.

But, while Bartley can withstand shocks, he cannot administer them. Wills thus was at no time in danger from the assault. The first clean blow that Wills struck was a hard right in the twelfth that opened up Madden's face and covered him with blood. Before that it had been nothing but short harmless jolts and cuffs.

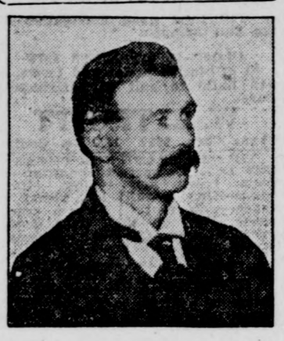
It was then, with Bartley bleeding like a stuck pig, that Harry tried to finish his man, but at the end of the assault when the bell rang ending the round, Madden faced the spectators with a red grin and walked as steadily to his corner as though going to mass on Sunday.

That ended any danger the Irishman may have faced of going to the floor. In the fifteenth he deliberately laughed at the negro.

Game? The writer will say Madden is game. Beyond that little can be said. Madden is a good tough second rater and will never be anything else. As for Wills, he was slow, uncertain, not too war-like. Maybe he needed this battle. Perhaps he will be the better man for it. But it looks, brothers, as though Harry has come to old age.

He's Pioneer

JOHN ALVIS, veteran factory worker, claims to have made the first roll of asphalt roofing that was ever turned out in any factory.



The proud distinction of being the man to manufacture the first roll of asphalt roofing ever turned out in any factory is claimed by John Alvis, a veteran employe of the Paraffine companies, Inc., of San Francisco, one of the leaders in this industry.

The product of the Paraffine companies, Inc., finds a ready sale in this territory, according to S. F. Bell of the Wilson-Bell Hardware company, 227 North Brand boulevard, local representatives of the company, who says that contractors are quick to admit its superiority as roofing material, furnishing fireproof protection for the homes on which it is installed and affording a durable roof that defies the encroachments of time to a degree that renders it the policy of wisdom for home builders to use it wherever possible.

The feature that guarantees the Paraffine companies' product against repainting for a ten-year period is one that appeals strongly to those who are building their homes and who desire to reduce the construction expense as much as possible, while the variety of colors in which the roofing material comes affords builders wide choice.

THREE CRIMINAL CLASSES LISTED

Reading of Constitution Is America's Biggest Need, Attorney Claims

"As long as the people of the United States regard the case of a person on trial for his life or his liberty as a game of chance or a battle of wits between attorneys, just so long will criminals escape and crime increase," declared Buron E. Fitts, chief deputy in the office of District Attorney Keyes, in an address delivered at the meeting of the Kiwanis club today noon at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse.

Mr. Fitts is past commander of the department of California for the American Legion, and spoke on the constitution and law and order in behalf of the American Legion as part of the program of selling the legion to the public.

Read Constitution

One of the greatest faults of Americans today, the speaker said, was failure to read and know the constitution. If persons who spend hours reading of murder cases and criminal actions would spend one-hundredth part of that time reading the constitution, there would be less crime in the country today, he said.

There are three classes of criminals the officers have to deal with, he said. First is the born criminal, who gives very little trouble. The second is the occasional criminal, whose activities do not tax the offices of justice. The third is the most dangerous, he said, the habitual or professional criminal. A human life can be taken in Los Angeles county by a professional gunman for $110, the speaker declared.

Wins Applause

The speaker was introduced by James F. McBryde, a member of the club, and a Legion man. Kiwanians declared Mr. Fitts' address the most interesting and most stirring talk that has been delivered at the club in months. His remarks were interrupted a number of times by hearty applause.

Ed Radke won the attendance prize, donated by Jesse Smith. Frank Echols, chairman of the committee, directed to prepare a roster of the club, reported the booklets were finished and ready for distribution. Other members of the committee were Frank Fox and Sidney Brown.

Rev. C. M. Calderwood spoke briefly on the Community Service play, "Kempy," to be given tomorrow night. George Lyons urged the members of the club to get behind the booster baseball day program tomorrow and to attend the game. "Bill" Bode told of the picnic held last Saturday near La Crescenta.

Elephants' feet are being converted into household receptacles, such as flower pots, by a German firm.

BIG CONTEST AT PARK TOMORROW

Glendale an attraction that will furnish one of the fastest exhibitions of scientific baseball ever seen on a local lot.

The Gilmore Oilers now stand third in the Summer league, and they have been dangerous contenders every time they pulled on their uniforms and started to wave their war clubs, and tomorrow's game will give them the chance they have been longing—to break the White Sox winning streak and haul the local team back a few notches in the percentage column.

Sox Practicing

On the other hand, Carl Sawyer has called his gang together on numerous and sundry occasions during the week and instilled a little more pep and practice into the bunch. Every wearer of the well-known pale hose will be on edge tomorrow afternoon at the San Fernando ball park to prove to the satisfaction of several thousand baseball fans and the Oilers that the Sox are still the logical leaders.

Wallace, classy pitcher for the Oilers, has been selected to do the mound duty for the Gilmores, while Sawyer has handed a big assignment to Palmer. He is expected to stand the Oilers individually and collectively, upon their heads by making them reach for his smoky slants, such as he dished up two weeks ago for the Colored All-Stars.

Harp Ennis will be on the receiving end for the Gilmores, while Sullivan will gather in all the fast ones Palmer throws and the Oilers miss. Young, who broke the spirit of the Pasadena Merchants last Sunday with his terrific hitting, will again lead off the batting list for the locals.

Notables on Hand

The game will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock, with Page and Kibby as umpires. Paul J. McCormick, United States district judge, and Sheriff "Bill" Traeger, known among baseball fans in all parts of the great Southwest, will officiate at the opening ceremonies.

Carl Sawyer, who has a reputation far and wide as a diamond comedian, and "Happy" Wintz, El Segundo's noted baseball clown, have been holding some secret practices this week that doesn't at all concern balls and strikes. They have refused to give out any advance dope concerning what they plan to do, but only say: "Just wait and see."

Either one is an attraction well worth the price of admission, but when the two of them team up there is bound to be something doing every minute of the show. Wintz recently appeared in Glendale with the El Segundo team and almost upset the game with his clever antics.

Autos on Field

Automobiles will be admitted on the field, so that baseball fans who drive to the park can sit back against the cushions of their car and enjoy the game to the fullest. This is a special privilege Manager Frank Kerwin is making for the occasion.

Residents of Glendale will "say it with tickets" tomorrow whether the much-heralded Glendale White Sox team will continue to bring columns upon columns of publicity for Glendale, or if the team will have to be disbanded on account of lack of support.

Manager Kerwin, as previously announced, has been losing money on practically every game the team has played in Glendale, as his actual running expenses have, in many instances, exceeded his share of the gate receipts. So consistent has this lack of support been that it has become necessary to put the matter directly up to the citizens of Glendale.

Stage Ticket Drive

To show that he has no designs on making a fortune off Glendale baseball fans while giving them the best in the Southwest, Manager Kerwin has agreed to turn the entire matter over to a committee which will handle all funds received from ticket sales, and generally look after the matter of finance.

A number of business men of the city, realizing the importance of such a baseball team to Glendale, have devoted generously of their time to sell 5,000 tickets for the big game tomorrow. They want to keep the team in Glendale, and know that support is needed to do it.

Tomorrow is the game of games for Glendale. It is to be the turning point in the baseball activities of the city. It is to decide whether Glendale will continue to receive untold publicity and advertising free of cost by means of its ball club, or will receive nothing. There will be a game worth three times the price of admission, to say nothing of the extra added attractions, the antics of Carl Sawyer and "Happy" Wintz and the pleasure of seeing the White Sox in action against the Gilmore pastimers.

The cost is 50 cents—one-half a dollar.

Let's go!

Total Blindness Only Illusion, Says Doctor

LONDON, June 13.—Blindness is an illusion, in the opinion of Dr. R. H. Elliott, well-known English doctor.

"There is a widespread impression that the blind live in perpetual darkness," he says.

"This I believe to be an error in observation, for my inquiries have elicited the information from blind people that they habitually see a bright background.

INVESTMENTS

By GEORGE T. HUGHES
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

In the previous article on oil production securities I detailed a few of the hazards in oil production which account for the enormous losses of inexperienced speculators. Undoubtedly, misrepresentation is at the bottom of most of these losses. The risk has not been fully presented or has been misrepresented. If buyers of oil stocks had been correctly informed of the danger, incompetent or dishonest enterprises would not have obtained their money. The investor or speculator must deal with persons who will truthfully present the complete picture if he is to invest or to speculate sanely in oil securities.

Oil production is essentially a common stock proposition. There is nothing of certain or commensurate value that may be mortgaged as basis for a bond issue. Likewise the uncertainties of production and the certainty of ultimate exhaustion of a field's deposits forbid a preferred stock issue. Buyers of preferred stock naturally anticipate a sound liquidating value of their stock and there is no assurance that such stock could be taken up by future returns from oil wells.

But oil production has become such an essential to modern life that it must be financed. The very nature of the business calls for common stock financing, with purchasers of stock knowingly assuming the risks and depending on large profits to pay for them. Obviously the person of moderate means and with virtually no way of obtaining dependable, expert information, has no business dabbling in oil. The money should come from professional operators, from large oil companies or from well-to-do business men and bankers who can and will employ honest, experienced, expert oil men to conduct operations, and who can thereby expect a fair chance to obtain the possible large returns.

But the small investor, who goes out after the large returns, cannot afford the loss, which is always possible even in the most expert and honest operation. More than that, he usually is unable to know whether he is putting his money into a thoroughly honest and competent enterprise. He is in no position to judge as to the efficiency of the operators or to determine whether they are honest or of the large army of professional oil stock swindlers.

Established oil companies do a good deal of exploring and developing and employ the most dependable known methods. They can afford the certain losses that occur because their other developments will pay. Stock in such sound, established enterprises is well worthy of consideration, if the investor is able to assume the risk. The fact that an oil operator is a big league baseball player, a minister, or the son of a governor, a senator, a general or a dry goods prince, doesn't mean anything. The oil business requires oil experts, not professional athletes and family trees, if it is to be conducted profitably.

In the refining, transporting and marketing divisions of the oil industry there is sometimes sound basis for issues of bonds, preferred stocks or notes. These enterprises own plants, pipe lines, tank cars, steamers and other equipment that may be mortgages. Financing such companies is similar to other industrial financing, since refining is a manufacturing or industrial process.

But every such oil enterprise is different from every other and investment bankers must consider them on their individual merits. Here is a modest, efficient and profitable refining company with a pipe line system to the wells of producers from whom it buys. It has been financed entirely by common stock. It may need more capital. But it draws its oil from one field, the capacity of which is uncertain. With curtailing of its crude oil supply it would have to build expensive pipe lines to other fields. Or competitors might buy up the pool's output and leave the company without oil and with an expensive refining plant on its hands. The small company would have to close down or buy producing wells and build lines to them. That company could offer no safe basis for a bond or a preferred stock issue although it owned a valuable plant.

On the other side the small refining company might meet marketing difficulties and be compelled to add cars, tank steamers and other equipment to get its product to the consumer. Obviously such companies must depend largely on common stock issues or local borrowings from persons associated in the enterprise or well acquainted with it. There is too much risk for a sound bond issue.

Larger companies vary in their financial structure. A number have developed on common stock issues, putting back a substantial part of their earnings into their properties and extensions. They have built up large common stock equities and have issued preferred stocks or notes for additional financing. While some issue bonds either through subsidiaries or the parent company, unsecured notes or debentures have perhaps been more frequent. The old, established oil companies can offer excellent protection to their investors.

Tank cars and steamers are sometimes pledged under equipment trusts as security for bonds and such securities of high-class conmpanies are considered excellent.

The securities of established, capably-managed, sound oil companies may be very desirable, but, unfortunately, the public does not usually buy the securities of such enterprises. It requires consummate ability to operate an oil business successfully, for the risks and uncertainties of the production end naturally are reflected in a measure to every other division of the industry. Few oil securities can be ranked higher than "business men's investments" and unfortunately, these few are the securities the public overlooks.

COMMODITY NOTES

By Special Correspondents of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

TEXTILES

ATLANTA, June 13.—Georgia textile plants continue to operate on short time, although several large Carolina mills have gone back to capacity schedules. Holders of spot cotton are selling sparingly, as they still believe there will be a shortage at the mills before the 1924 crop is ginned.

BOSTON, June 13.—It will be some months before the Dover plant of the Pacific Mills, where a long strike has just been ended, can be brought to full production on the new schedule. The plant makes about 15 per cent of the company's gray goods.

FRUIT

SAN FRACISCO, June 13.—Hawaiian canners plan to pack 6,000,000 cases of pineapples this year, according to local brokers. The crop is one of the largest in the history of the islands and of unusual quality. The carry-over is small and probably will be cleaned up before the new crop comes on the market.

OIL

SHREVEPORT, La., June 13.—The properties of the Continental Asphalt and Petroleum company in Red River parish, sold under order of the federal court, brought $550,000 from the Fortuna Oil company. The leases and equipment were included.

FLOUR

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—Shipments of flour from St. Louis in the last month totaled 426,320 barrels, compared with 484,960 a year ago. Wheat shipments amounted to 1,471,269 bushels, against 2,303,145. Receipts of flour were 398,680 barrels, against 394,370 last year, and receipts of wheat 1,730,550 bushels, compared with 2,211,637 bushels.

AUTOMOBILES

MOTPELIER, Vt., June 13.—Registration of automobiles in Vermont are 47,903, compared with 38,022 at this time last year. Sales have increased with warmer weather, although farmers have been hard hit by lower prices for dairy products.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

CHICAGO, June 13.—Butter markets show few signs of weakness, but little activity, as dealers are waiting lower prices before putting large quantities into storage. Weather conditions have held down output.

CLOTHING

SEATTLE, June 13.—Some of the largest retail clothiers here will send buyers east late this month for their fall and winter supplies, and practically all the clothing merchants here will be in the market early in July. They have put off buying to determine price trends and have only small stocks on hand.

LIVE STOCK

FORT WORTH, June 13.—Trading in yearlings has been active recently. Forty-four cars of yearlings for feeding in Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, loaded out of Dermott late last week, brought $35 a head.

FARM IMPLEMENTS

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—Implement dealers and hardware men report improvement in trade. Buying, which heretofore has been slow, is being forced by the approach of harvest time.

LUMBER

CLEVELAND, June 13.—Prices for lumber used in finishing have been cut from $1 to $5 a thousand feet, according to the official Cleveland lumber statistician. This is unusual at this time of year. Building permits for May increased over those of May, 1923, and figures for the first five months of the year show an increase over the corresponding time of last year.

L. A. EXCHANGE

By Southland News Service

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—With mines inactive and oils only showing activity in spots, trading on the Los Angeles stock and bond exchange was light this morning. Prices held fairly steady, however. Richmond Consolidated in the mining list advancing from yesterday's low of 11 cents and a close of 12 1-2 cents to 13 1-2 cents.

In the oils Julian Petroleum preferred still held the center of interest. It held steady at $31.75 while common strengthened considerably during the morning session. Last night's close was $16.75, the low spot of the week. The open this morning was $18. During the forenoon it advanced to $18.75 but later slipped back to the opening figure.

Union Associates, the only other active oil stock, was firm at $54.

Los Angeles Investment stock was fairly steady today, opening at $3.58 and advancing 2 points to $3.60, yesterday's high. Sales were not heavy.

In the utilities, Los Angeles Gas and Electric preferred was steady at $88.75. Edison 7 per cent opened firm at $103.25 and the common stock at $101.

NEW YORK CLOSING

H. J. DUIZEND
For International News Service

NEW YORK, June 13.—The stock market today presented a mixed array of price movements. The most encouraging feature was the way prices stood up in the face of profit-taking which was visible during the greater part of the session. Offerings were generally well taken and at small concessions and trading was conducted with the same spirit of optimism that characterized transactions all week.

Speculators for the decline seized upon the let-up in constructive movement to apply pressure against various industrial groups, especially oils and steels, but their efforts failed to produce results.

Railroad shares again formed the high lights in the speculative situation persistent rumors of consolidations of all kinds furnishing the incentive for the bullishness in Rock Island, Chicago Great Western and other low priced carriers.

Buying spread to the dividend payers in the afternoon, the northwestern group being particularly prominent. The overflow of investment demand was no doubt responsible for the strength in the seasoned dividend issues, both railroad and industrial.

Stock sales today were 926,100 shares; bonds, $24,783,000.

FINANCIAL BRIEFS

By Southland News Service

Stability of oil prices is foreseen in the report that the production of crude oil in this country now is 92,450 barrels a day less than a year ago and fields are declining in their outpouring of black gold. Also, there is an increased gasoline demand with vacation touring in full swing.

With the Southern Railway announcing dividends on both common and preferred and other lines reported on a paying basis the activity in rail stocks is most promising.

White Eagle oil announced a regular dividend yesterday.

Bullish cotton buying has eased off a bit with reports of good weather, although exports orders cause occasional rallies on the market.

Packard is paying 3 per cent quarterly dividend on common payable July 31, stock of record July 15. Sterling products also declared a dividend of $1 on August 1, stock of record July 10. Regular dividends were announced by American La France Fire Engine company.

New York and New Orleans cotton traders are petitioning the exchange to have all day Saturday off to make a two-day holiday during the summer months. The condition of the market would permit them to take a week off and still find time to do their yachting every day.

While the stockholders have voted a large increase in stock for the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company, President Herr advises that the officers will not market the issue for some time. He says it is simply a matter of good business to have a reserve ready for rapid expansion.

Low money rates in the east are conducive to new financing of established concerns, and public utilities are going ahead with many large projects in face of the slow political season.

Hubert A. Parson continues as president of the F. W. Woolworth company, it is announced, with C. S. Woolworth chairman of the board. Directors also were re-elected.

For the first time in history of two markets, says advices carried by the E. F. Hutton wire, New York discount rates for banker acceptances are lower than London figures. Acceptances up to three months are being discounted on Wall street at 2½ per cent, while London bankers are getting 2⅞ and 3 per cent. This condition of affairs will give American bankers an opportunity to compete with their British cousins on even terms in financing international trade, it is pointed out.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, June 13.—Grains closed unchanged to a shade higher today after withstanding a series of bear attacks. Wheat finished unchanged to ⅛c higher; corn unchanged to ¼c up and oats unchanged. Wheat was early affected by news of high temperatures suddenly appearing in the middle west. Oats showed a firmer trend. The provisions market was more active, October lard showing most of the dealings.

NEW SUBMARINE LIFE BOAT OUT

British Shipwrights Invent Submersible Craft; to Be Given Tryout

LONDON, June 13.—Loss of life in submarine disasters will be minimized if a submersible lifesaving boat just patented by two Hollyhead shipwrights comes up to expectations.

The invention takes the form of a covered boat that can be attached to the top deck of a submarine in such a way that the occupants of a submerged submarine can enter the boat, cast it off and safely reach the surface, according to the inventors.

The men can leave the submarine and enter the lifeboat in a few minutes through the manhole and the connecting tube. One manhole is at the bottom of the lifeboat and the other on deck, and the tube connects both manholes. The boat is motor-driven and will rise to the surface from any depth.

Study Monks' Dietary Habits as Health Aid

COWFOLD, Eng., June 13.—Immunity from influenza, consumption and other diseases has induced the ministry of health to study the dietary habits of the monks of the Carthusian Monastery here, with a view to applying their fruitarian principles to the treatment of cancer.

The first meal each day at the monastery is at 11 a. m. and consists usually of bread and cheese, omelette, fish, cauliflower-au-gratin and fruit pudding, accompanied by red or white wine. No hot liquid is ever consumed, nor is meat eaten. The second meal, which is the last, is taken at 4:30 p. m. and consists only of dry bread, or chocolate and wine.

Longevity is most common in the monastery: the youngest brother buried in the cemetery was more than eighty when he died.

FORTUNES REMAIN INTACT IS CLAIM

CHICAGO, June 13.—Big American fortunes tend to remain intact. The shirt-sleeves-to-shirt sleeves tradition that grandchildren of millionaires have to go to work is only a myth, W. R. Shirley, president of the National Fraternal Congress, told a fraternal welfare conference here.

"Examination of fortunes big enough to be widely known," said Mr. Shirley, "shows that they do not break up in passing from generation to generation, but in many cases increase tenfold. The Guggenheim family is an example of this. When Meyer Guggenheim died, in 1905, he left $50,000,000. His six sons today have a fortune of $500,000,000 and control half the world's copper supply.

Fortunes Show Increase

"All the Standard Oil fortunes have increased enormously. Steven W. Harkness, who was one of Rockefeller's right-hand men, left a fortune of less than $50,000,000. The aggregate wealth of the family is now $400,000,000. The Payne, Flagler, Archibold, Frasch, Rogers and Tilford fortunes have shown similar increase.

"Alexis I. du Pont died in 1921 and left a fortune estimated at $30,000,000. Today the du Pont heirs are worth half a billion. There are a score of fourth and fifth generation du Ponts now alive, any one of whom is worth more money than Alexis.

"Luck and force of circumstances have been responsible for many fortunes. Most men cannot achieve wealth. Moreover a large proportion of the workers of America cannot possibly provide for their old age by their own individual efforts and become dependents."

Greece will have automatic telephones.

CLUB WILL HOLD CLASS IN OPERA

Music Department to Bring Lecturers to Talk on Composers' Work

while work undertaken by this department.

Members of the program committee for the coming year include Mrs. Young, Mrs. Warren Roberts, retiring curator, and Mrs. Freeman McG. Kelley.

To Discuss Operas

They have further decided that one meeting a month will be in charge of a capable instructor, who will take up the discussion of some opera. At the second meeting in the month there will be a program featured by selections from the opera previously studied. The department is to meet on the second and fourth Friday afternoons of the month and a new opera will be taken up each month.

In order to provide for financing department activities a finance committee has been appointed to function from October to May. It will be the duty of this group of women to arrange some kind of a benefit affair for every month during the club year. Members of the committee are Miss Eva Daniels, Mesdames Edwin Cleophas, E. W. Kinney, Frank Weller, William MacMullen, Leslie Tronsier, Frankie Webb and Virginia Freeman.

Honor Mrs. Roberts

At the luncheon yesterday the department bade farewell to Mrs. Warren Roberts, who has so efficiently served as curator during the past two years.

Under her leadership the department purchased the grand piano for the clubhouse auditorium and has also given active support to every undertaking of the club and has furnished some wonderful programs to which the club at large has been cordially invited.

As an expression of love and esteem from her associates Mrs. Roberts was presented with a bouquet of lovely roses.

The luncheon was served in the Italian tea room. Mrs. E. Hensel and her committee, Mesdames Bine J. Smith, Baker and Horn, who had arranged the luncheon, are to be congratulated on their splendid work.

Clever Place Cards

Bouquets of yellow and orange flowers furnished brilliant notes in the table decorations. At each place was a cunning little place card, bearing a queer-looking bug, a combination of either yellow or orange crepe paper and a small cricket snapper on long wire legs. These place cards were the clever work of Mrs. Estelle Brain.

During the luncheon hour Mrs. Lang was named to represent the department on the club calling committee for next year.

Mrs. Alexander Mitchell was given a few minutes to tell of the work of the Glendale Symphony orchestra, and the women present gave expressions of hearty approval and support of the organization.

Cantor on Program

The program given later had been arranged by Mrs. Helen MacMullin, who introduced a group of well known and beloved Glendale artists. Henry Cantor, who has won fame in grand opera work, came from his business in Los Angeles to sing for the clubwomen, and he received a most hearty reception. Accompanied by Alice R. Ripley he sang an aria from "Pagliacci," "Your Eyes Have Told Me," "For You Alone" and an Italian ballad "Day Banishes the Night."

Added musical entertainment was given by Mrs. Enona Hopkins, well known harpist, whom the department is proud to claim as a member; Lura Jane Burris, vocalist, who sang "Wings of Night," "Polonaise" and "Open Secret." Mrs. Burris is also one of the talented members of the department.

The dramatic element in the program was introduced by Pearl L. Moore, clever child impersonator, who created most convincing juvenile characters in her recitation of "Mary Jones," "Gee I'd Like to Die," "The Snake" and "The Bear Story."

Festival to Recall Days of Old Spain

SANTA BARBARA, June 13.—Santa Barbara is going to vie with Pasadena in an annual event that will bring thousands of visitors to the Mission city the first two weeks in August. "Old Spanish Days" is the tentative name for a festival now in its inception, but a very lusty infant.

The success of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena has caused civic leaders to look around for something that will be equally as unique here. Hamilton McFadden, director of the Community Arts association, is sponsoring the idea, originating with the plans for an elaborate ceremonial opening the Lobero Theatre, a home of the spoken drama, which will present "The Beggar on Horseback" as its initial offering.

Daylight Saving for Los Angeles Proposed

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—Daylight saving was approved by the public welfare committee of the City Council and will become effective next Sunday if the unanimous vote of the council approves.

NANCY ST. CLAIR BECOMES BRIDE was transformed into a bower of spring loveliness for the wedding. Palms, ferns and other greenery and a profusion of white bridal wreath and spring flowers were used in decorating the chancel.

Special Music

Before the ceremony Mrs. Leda Root, sister of the bride, sang "O, Promise Me," and Charles W. Collom, brother-in-law of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly." They were accompanied on the piano by Miss Ruth Goldsborough with violin obligato played by Herbert Bruck.

For the processional of the bridal party Miss Goldsborough played the Lohengrin wedding march and for the recessional, the Mendelssohn wedding march.

Miss St. Clair's maid of honor was her niece, Miss Lucille St. Clair of Bakersfield. She wore a pale green silk crepe frock with over drapes of cream silk lace. She carried an arm bouquet of pink sweetpeas, roses and ferns.

Mildred Collom of Glendale, another niece of the bride, was the ring bearer. She wore an orchid organdie frock trimmed with lace and hand embroidery, and carried the golden circlets on a white satin pillow.

Bride's Wedding Gown

June Weiskopf, also a niece of Miss St. Clair's, was the little flower girl. She wore a pink organdie frock trimmed in lace and carried a small white basket filled with rose petals which she scattered in the bride's path.

Miss St. Clair wore a bridal gown of exquisite beauty. It was fashioned of white mirror crepe satin, made with accordion pleated apron front and trimmed with tiny pearl buttons. She wore a wedding veil fastened in place with orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower of white bride's roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Harry St. Clair.

Charles G. Almquist, brother of the groom, was the best man.

Miss St. Clair's wedding veil, the silken pillow and the ribbon shower on the bridal bouquet were all used by her three sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Collom and Mrs. Leda Root of Glendale and Mrs. Charles H. Weiskopf of Hawthorne.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Almquist were greeted by their many friends in the social hall of the church.

Leave For Honeymoon

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Almquist left by automobile for a trip to San Francisco and vicinity. For traveling, Mrs. Almquist wore a chic sport suit in tan and artichoke green with green hat to match.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Almquist have countless friends in Los Angeles and Glendale who are wishing them great happiness.

The St. Clair family have been residents of Glendale for the past seven years. Mrs. Almquist attended and graduated from the Manual Arts High school. For the past four years she has been employed in the public service department at the Glendale City Hall.

Mr. Almquist has been a resident of Los Angeles for several years. He graduated from the Polytechnic High school, and later established a business of his own in Los Angeles. About four years ago Mrs. Almquist and Mr. Almquist were employed by the same firm in Los Angeles, and later, Mrs. Almquist moved to Glendale. They did not renew their friendship until about a year ago, when they met again through a mutual friend.

BACK FROM LONG EASTERN JOURNEY

H. G. Davis Rejoins Selling Force of Reo Branch in This City

H. G. Davis has just returned to this city from a thirty-day trip to Chicago, and wishes his many friends to know that he is again with the Glendale factory branch of the Reo Motor Car company of California at 126 South Orange street, where he has been employed as salesman since the opening of the branch in January.

While in the middle west he attended the home coming at the University of Chicago, of which he is a graduate, and met a number of the men that graduated from that institution in his class. He declares that his trip through the middle west convinced him more firmly than ever that Glendale is the ideal home city. He ran into a great deal of rainy and chilly weather during his short stay in Chicago.

DEALERS RETURN AFTER HI JINKS

trout, and all agreed that it had been a wonderful, monumental party. While they had been in a hurry on the way up, on the return trip they loitered, stopping at many of the attractive orange inns along the road.

Lands Big Trout

One of the largest trout was brought back by M. B. Towman, secretary of the association. It weighed just two and a quarter pounds. Many of the dealers brought back catches that included fish just under the two-pound mark.

All agreed that Frank Culver, proprietor of Forest Home, had treated them right. Many expressed the desire to return to this charming "mile high" resort later in the season, for week-end trips. The air was exhilarating and they declared that sleep at that altitude was decidedly refreshing.

Friendly Spirit

Lyman P. Clark, president of the Glendale Automobile Dealers' association, expresses himself thus on the trip:

"One of the best things in our association is the spirit of personal friendship existing among the dealers, which makes possible and is fostered by these annual Hi Jinks. There is scarcely a business where co-operation is more essential than in the automobile business. We must put up a solid front to be of any real service to the public, which means success for us. We now have eighteen dealers in the association, and by next year I look to see the Glendale Automobile Dealers' association recognized as one of the most potent and effective organizations in Southern California, working together with a smoothness made possible by the spirit of friendliness manifested in such gatherings as this from which we have just returned."
